Egyptian Trip Ends in Death

A Victoria couple whose daughter vanished on a trip to Egypt in 1976 have learned their daughter is dead.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Carol Harold, of 1004 De Costa, are now attempting to have Egyptian authorities send her remains back to Canada.

The body of their daughter, Carol Anita, 35, was found near a pharoah's tomb in upper Egypt.

Her skeletal remains were found in a labyrinth beyond the pharonic temples of Karnak and Luxor, the newspaper Al Ahram reported Tuesday.

Beside her was a farewell note written before her death.

Born in Port Alberni, Miss Harold graduated from Mount View High School and was a social worker and a graduate of Queen's University in Kingston.

An enthusiastic archeology student, she left the Luxor hotel in December, 1976 and went out alone to visit the Valley of Kings on the west bank of the Nile. She never returned.

An international search notice was posted and Egyptian patrols regularly scoured the desert area around Luxor.

An Egyptian inquiry into the cause of death said that Miss Harold fell into an abandoned excavation outside the Tomb of King Tutankhamen while exploring a tunnel leading to a cave.

Unable to climb the six-metre high rock face, she wrote a farewell note and waited for death.

In the note, published by Al Ahram, Miss Harold explained how she fell, blamed her death on carelessness and ended, "I regret that I can do nothing to save my own life."

NEW JEWEL AT UVIC

The new jewel on the University of Victoria campus costs $8 million and some Victorians have detected flaws.

But the 1,275-seat University Centre concert hall is drawing visitors from afar, some with high hopes of borrowing innovative features to include in similar halls planned in their own cities.

The people most intimately associated with the centre acknowledge some early problems.

350 Jobs In New Ferry Project

Burrard Yarrows Corporation was today awarded the $57.8 million contract for building two new Cowichan-class ferries for the Departure Bay—Horseshoe Bay route.

The company's Victoria and Vancouver divisions will each build one of the vessels.

Don Challinor, general manager of the Victoria division, said the contract could mean the creation of up to 350 jobs here.

The new vessels will be similar to but improved versions of the ferries Queen of Cowichan and Queen of Coquitlam already on the route.

Challinor said they will be 357 feet long, accommodating 360 cars and 1,500 passengers.

Modifications on the original Cowichan-class design include an additional 18 inches in width, and improved seating and galley arrangements.

The Vancouver shipyard will be working about two months ahead of its Victoria counterpart, he said.

The ferry to be built in Vancouver will be delivered in February, 1981, while the Victoria vessel is scheduled for delivery in April that year.

Challinor said the steel required may not be delivered for about three months, so actual construction will not start until then.

Reveal Sources Or Risk Jail, B.C. Editor Told

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The B.C. Ferries Corporation is seeking a court order to have the editor of a small bi-weekly newspaper in Powell River jailed or fined.

Her offense: Failing to disclose the newspaper's sources in a story about a ferry docking collision last September.

Legal sources say the motion by the corporation, to be heard Monday in the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver, marks the first time anyone has tried to have a B.C. journalist declared in contempt of an arbitration board.

Specifically, the application by the ferry authority seeks an order that Wendy Fitzgibbons, editor of the award-winning Powell River News and Powell River Town Crier (circulation 5,500), "be committed to the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) or alternatively fined for contempt of the board of arbitration."

In an interview with the Times Tuesday, New Zealand-born Fitzgibbons would not say whether she intends to maintain silence under the threat of imprisonment.

But she did say: "Confidentiality of names and information is sacred to any decent journalist and I consider myself a decent journalist."

The corporation's action arises out of an arbitration hearing in Victoria last week when Fitzgibbons refused to identify Town Crier sources who said the master of the ferry Queen of the Islands was not on the bridge when it collided last Sept. 20 with a dock at Saltery Bay, 17 miles south of Powell River.

The collision, which caused an estimated $500,000 damage, was initially blamed on malfunctioning equipment.

But after an internal inquiry into the incident some time after the newspaper's reported allegations the corporation fired Captain Gerry Stalling.

The B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers' Union subsequently appealed the firing by filing a grievance under the collective agreement and the two-day arbitration hearing in Victoria last week will resume in Vancouver Tuesday — the day after Fitzgibbons appears in court on the contempt application.

The Monday edition of the Powell River newspaper appears under the Town Crier logo while the Wednesday edition is called the News. Fitzgibbons has been editor of both for the last 2½ years.

Fitzgibbons told the Times her 13-year career in newspapers covers five years in New Zealand and the last eight in Canada. Before joining the Powell River newspaper she was international editor of the Edmonton Journal and prior to that she was with the Winnipeg Tribune and Calgary Albertan.

She said the curious aspect of the whole affair was the initial absence of any official reaction to the Town Crier story.

But then, shortly before Christmas, "the phone started burning up with people asking questions about the allegations," she said.

Fitzgibbons said she refused to disclose the sources quoted in the item, and again declined to do so when she was summonsed to appear before the arbitration board last week.

Vancouver lawyer Irwin Nathanson stated at the

'BLOOD BATH' ON STRIKE ACT?

NELSON (CP) — More than 1,000 union workers listened as Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, threatened a "blood-bath" if the provincial government continues to restrict the right to strike. He did not elaborate.

The rally Tuesday night was the first of nine planned for the province to demonstrate organized labor's objections to Section 11 of the Essential Services Disputes Act. The act, passed in December, restricts strike action in schools, municipalities and regional districts.

Labor leaders in British Columbia are looking to the election process to protect collective bargaining, Kinnaird said.

"There's no power greater than the working people and we can exercise that power at the polls," he said. "That's what we're going to do."

Canada Geese nibble contentedly

Goose Feeders Given The Bird In Penticton

PENTICTON (CP) — Bird lovers will have to keep a low profile in this Okanagan city if council is successful at putting into effect two motions it passed this week in an effort to clean up pollution problems caused by an overpopulation of Canada geese at area lakes.

Council voted to draft a bylaw that would make feeding geese at parks and beaches an offence punishable by a fine and to ask the Canadian Wildlife Service to approve controlled hunting of the geese and other waterfowl.

The goose population, estimated by local naturalists to have increased to over 800 this year from 250 five years ago, has fouled beaches and water at Okanagan and Skaha Lakes to such an extent that health authorities have suggested that at least part of one beach might have to be closed.

The Greenpeace Foundation, which has locked horns with city council before over the question of chemical treatment of aquatic weeds that infest the lakes, said Tuesday it will oppose the controlled shoot.

Greenpeace president Patrick Moore said protestors "will stand in front of the guns, if we have to, to put a halt to this stupid destruction of wildlife."

Moore said the proposal was "a senseless solution to a non-existent problem."

"If these people are genuinely worried about pollution, they would do something about the human and industrial sewage flowing into the lake and the runoff from fertilizer and domestic animal waste in the Okanagan basin.

"This whole idea sounds more like a thin excuse for someone to get in some hunting than anything to do with health or ecology."

No Interference - Mair

Environment Minister Rafe Mair said today he was critical of a B.C. Supreme Court judgment which named him as having interfered in a rentalsman case.

In a written judgment in a landlord-tenant dispute, Mr. Justice R.P. Anderson found that Mair had telephoned the rentalsman's office after Vancouver Sun columnist Doug Collins criticized the rentalsman's handling of the case.

The judge's written statement said Mair's interference was unwarranted when he called the rentalsman to say that "he wanted them to keep a tight lid on this dispute and to keep the press out of it".

In a telephone interview today from Vancouver, Mair denied he ever phoned the rentalsman.

And he said he has instructed his counsel to initiate libel action against the Vancouver Express and reporter Paul Musgrove for printing a story quoting the judge's written ruling.

He is seeking an immediate apology and damages from the Express and Musgrove.

Tehran Airport Re-Opened

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The Iranian army today abruptly announced the re-opening of Tehran airport only hours after tank-led troops closed the runways in an attempt to stop the triumphant return of anti-government leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"The situation is totally confused," one diplomat said. "We have been told by the military the airport is open. That is all we know. We don't know if it will remain open Friday when Khomeini is scheduled to return and if the government has had a change of heart."

Tank and infantry units of the elite Imperial Guards, known for fierce loyalty to the shah, remained stationed at the airport even after its reopening was announced. Although the airport closure by the army was officially announced on the national radio, the reopening was not.

Striking Iran Air workers earlier had disabled two Boeing 747 jumbo jets to be flown to Paris to bring the Shiite Moslem patriarch home after 14 years in exile.

In Paris, a spokesman for the 78-year-old religious leader said he will leave Paris Thursday night as scheduled, using a chartered Air France plane, but would turn back if the airport was still closed Friday.

Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar, whose government Khomeini has spurned as illegal because the shah appointed it, told parliament that he has sent a "trusted representative" to Paris to negotiate with Khomeini.

The air force, controlling airport operations because of a strike wave paralysing the country, will prevent any takeoff or landing of Iran Air planes, an air force

140,000 Hit Skids In Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission says 140,000 skateboarders ended up in hospital emergency rooms last year.

Injuries to skateboard users have grown to 30 times the figure for 1973 and one alarmed consumer group has asked the commission to ban skateboards.

"Something must be done immediately, before one more child dies or is permanently disabled," said Ann Brown, chairman of the consumer affairs committee of Americans for Democratic Action, in the group's petition to the commission.

The commission must decide next month if skateboards present an "unreasonable risk of injury" that makes a ban necessary.

Smiles Strike Weapon

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's civil servants and commuters suffering the misery of a rail strike and falling snow, have one thing in common: they have stopped smiling.

For the civil servants, members of the National Union of Public Employees, it's a deliberate weapon in their complaints about low pay. For the commuters, and millions of other Britons, its unavoidable as strikes affect more and more of their lives.

Rail services in south England were in chaos today and there was no progress toward a settlement of the major disputes involving truck and train drivers.

Low-paid workers who staged a protest strike Monday continued intermittent stoppages which in some districts deprived hospital patients of meals, closed schools and curtailed ambulance services.

The National Union of Public Employees told its members in southwest England to stay on the job but to perform their duties "without a smile or a sparkle."

Britain's biggest civil service union, the Civil and Public Services Association, announced its members had voted two-to- one to stage a one-day strike and follow it up with other forms of industrial action.

For the second straight day hundreds of thousands were unable to get to work. A one-day rail strike Tuesday meant lines had not been de-iced in freezing, snow-bound southern England.

The only move in the three-week-old truckers' dispute was an appeal by employers to the drivers. The Road Haulage Association placed advertisements in national newspapers urging drivers "to get Britain back on the road" and accept their latest 15 per cent pay offer.

Prime Minister James Callaghan met nurses' leaders at 10 Downing Street to discuss their pay grievance. The nurses, who complain they have fallen far behind on the pay scale, have pledged never to call an all-out strike.

No Crash Instructions, AirWest Survivors Say

VANCOUVER (CP) — Passengers were given no instructions for emergency procedures, two survivors of an AirWest Airlines plane crash that killed 11 people Sept. 2 told an inquest Tuesday.

Speaking through a interpreter, Matsaka Fukuta, 32, said that neither the pilot nor the cabin attendant told passengers to fasten their seat belts, the location of emergency doors and how they worked nor where to find life jackets.

Tour guide Yuki Ishii, the other survivor, said he told the Japanese tourists in their language not to smoke during takeoff and landing and to fasten their seatbelts during the entire flight from Victoria to Vancouver's Coal Harbor.

Fukuta, a pilot with Japan Air Lines, said he routinely reads emergency instructions when flying as a passenger, but found none aboard the AirWest Twin Otter.

He said that after the crash, he unfastened his seat belt and looking forward from his seat in the rear of the plane, "saw a big opening, a big hole and light was coming through it and I thought, I wonder if I should escape through that."

He gave up the idea because of the number of passengers in his way.

"Instead I put my hand to the exit on my left and I rattled that (emergency door) handle, but it wouldn't open. I felt all over the ceiling in a search for air."

Ishii said he found an air space about a third of a metre high, took a breath and dove down into the sinking aircraft to look for an escape.

After taking another breath of air, he found his way out through a broken door in the baggage compartment and swam to the surface.

Fukuta, whose mother was among the 11 dead that included the pilot and cabin attendant, said he heard a strang noise, the plane wobbled and then dropped suddenly.

A moment later, he said, he saw a pair of hands go to the throttle control located on the ceiling of the plane and when the engines increased in pitch, the plane stabilized.

He said that when the plane started tilting he realized it might crash. During that time he saw a red light on the cockpit's dashboard.

The plane headed down, he said, on a glide path greater than the three-degree angle recommended by his airline.

Ishii, who said he has travelled AirWest numerous times, said the plane's descent "was such as I have never experienced before."

He said the group of 28 Japanese tourists he was guiding used two AirWest planes to fly from Victoria to Vancouver on the day of the crash.

Due to a mix-up in scheduling, he had to shift some group members between the ill-fated plane and another, which departed five minutes before his plane.

Donald Brenner, AirWest lawyer, asked Ishii if he noticed any of the tourists using a movie camera during the flight, but Ishii said he did not see any cameras used.

Brenner said later in an interview that one of the passengers killed is believed to have filmed movies from aboard the plane.

The inquest continues.

Glaziers Stay Off the Job

Glassworkers were off the job again today across B.C. in a series of study sessions designed to show their unhappiness over a growing number of jurisdictional disputes.

The glaziers are protesting what they claim is erosion of their traditional work by other construction trades.

A number of major construction sites in Victoria are affected by the walkouts, including restoration work on the Crystal Gardens.

A spokesman for the Glaziers Union Local 1527, representing workers in Vancouver and Victoria, said it has not yet been determined how long the glassworkers will stay out.

A union statement describes the situation as a spontaneous act by its members who are seeing their trade evaporate.

The statement says other construction trades are attacking the glaziers' union, encroaching upon traditional work done by the glass workers.

The glaziers feel that jurisdictional disputes have been increasingly awarded in favor of the other trades, leading to a erosion of the glassworkers' craft.

Construction sites have not been shut down by the glaziers, however, and the union says no plans have been made to set up informational picket-lines or take other job action.

In Vancouver, business agents for the union are discussing the situation with the Labor Relations Board.

AVALANCHES CLOSE HIGHWAY

TERRACE (CP) - Avalanches have closed Highway 16 between this community and Prince Rupert for up to two days, highways department spokesmen said today.

The 156-kilometre road has been plugged by two slides about halfway between the two towns. The avalanches came after recent heavy snowfalls in the area, followed by mild weather and rain.

Although no communities are threatened, highways spokesmen said the situation continues to be dangerous.

Victim, 89, Was Free To Leave

An Oak Bay Manor patient who died of pneumonia and other injuries Jan. 9 had freedom to come and go as she pleased, manor administrator Edna Galbraith told a coroner's jury Tuesday.

Glenella Hardy, 89, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital's intensive care unit three days after she was struck by a car driven by Lorraine Ayers, 50, of 3940 Smuggler's Cove.

Hardy, a retired school teacher, was struck across the street from the manor while returning home from a grocery store.

Galbraith testified the woman was an intermediate care patient, requiring about 60 minutes grooming assistance daily and 15 minutes attention by a registered nurse for administration of medication.

Because she was able to take care of herself, Hardy lived on the third floor of the manor, where patients are allowed freedom of movement as long as they notify the front desk.

Oak Bay Constable Robert Jones said a car parked near the scene of the accident about 2:55 p.m. Jan. 6 might have obstructed vision.

Cells Wrecked

DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP) — Prisoners at the federal penitentiary here damaged 30 cells during the night and a number of them were segregated "to protect the good order of the institution," officials said today.

A prison spokesman said he did not know what touched off the outbreak.

Prisoners began a work stoppage last week, prompting suspension of recreation and social activities and visiting privileges.

Anacin To Trial On Warning Label

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The manufacturers of the pain reliever Anacin were ordered Tuesday to stand trial on charges they failed to give adequate warnings of the suspected inherent dangers of prolonged use of the drug.

The suit against the Whitehall Laboratories division of American Home Products Corp. of New York was filed by Gerald Torsiello, who took eight Anacin tablets a day for 14 months for relief of an arthritic condition. He stopped taking the drug when he suffered gastrointestinal hemorrhaging.

His suit had been dismissed in the course of a trial in Morris County but the Appellate Division of Superior Court ordered Tuesday that it be retried.

The question of the legal adequacy of manufacturer's warning regarding the use of aspirin products, such as Anacin, has not been addressed in a reported U.S. court case and should be decided by a jury, the three-judge appeals court said.

The court said it also should be up to a jury to decide whether Torsiello's physician was negligent for failing to give him a proper warning against the prolonged use of aspirin.

Torsiello began taking Anacin tablets in January, 1974, after aggravating an arthritic condition and hearing the product "extolled in a television commercial as affording relief of arthritic pain," the court said.

The appeals court said Torsiello read the label, which recommended a dosage not to exceed eight tablets a day and that a physician should be consulted "immediately" if pain persisted for more than 10 days.

The trial judge had dismissed the complaint, saying the warning on the label was adequate in that the manufacturer was not obligated to warn consumers of any inherent dangers of prolonged use of the product. He also said Torsiello or his physician had the responsibility for his stomach problems because of the excessive use of the aspirin product.

But the appeals court disagreed. If the consuming public is generally unaware of the inherent danger of extended use of aspirin, then the product is "unreasonably dangerous if sold without an accompanying warning as to that specific risk of prolonged use," the court said.

Fish Talks Turning To the West Coast

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and U.S. negotiators concluded a tentative accord on East Coast fishing rights Tuesday.

U.S. negotiator Lloyd Cutler and Canada's Marcel Cadieux said after a day of negotiations that if their respective governments accept their recommendations, they hope a return to the traditional pattern of cross-boundary fishing will follow in the Atlantic.

The negotiators said they plan to recommend the use of a third-party arbitrator to sort out overlapping Canadian and U.S. territorial claims in the Atlantic—a process that may take years.

With East Coast recommendations complete, Cutler and Cadieux now want to turn their attention to West Coast fish and boundary problems. Asked whether reciprocal fishing would resume there this year, Cadieux told reporters it would depend on the outcome of negotiations.

Cutler said he expects that Canadian External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson and U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance would consult on the negotiations's recommendations within a week.

The boundary dispute began in 1977 when the two countries extended maritime limits to 200 miles from 12 miles. Their claims overlapped in four areas.

Last June, cross-boundary fishing on the East and West Coasts came to a halt with the breakdown amid accusations from both sides of an interim reciprocal fishing agreement, designed to prevent fishing disruptions while the boundary dispute was being settled.

Canada, charging that the United States has failed to live up to its side of the interim agreement, ordered U.S. boats to leave Canadian water. The U.S. responded by sending the Canadians home.

Cutler said Tuesday that if the recommendations he and Cadieux have drawn up are accepted by Vance and Jamieson, the U.S. administration might submit legislation to Congress for ratification, either as a treaty or an executive agreement, in four to six weeks.

U.S. fishing groups, if dissatisfied with the proposals, may try to fight the legislation in Congress, however, and thus hold up a resumption of reciprocal fishing, perhaps for months.

Under U.S. law, congressional approval is needed before foreign fishermen may operate in U.S. waters. Cutler said he has consulted with members of Congress who would be involved in ratification of the agreement and he is hopeful they will act as quickly as possible. Canadian cabinet approval also is needed.

Cutler said any West Coast agreement would go to Congress as separate legislation whenever he and Cadieux can come up with a satisfactory resolution of the problems.

He also said he hopes arbitration would not be necessary for the West Coast boundary line. Arbitration would be a long, involved process that would take several years, he said.

UN ARRANGES BORDER TRUCE

Associated Press

The United Nations arranged a ceasefire on the tense Israeli-Lebanese border and it was holding early today, a UN spokesman in Jerusalem said.

UN spokesman Hugo Rocha said a truce was arranged after three cross-border artillery duels in the last five days. He said it followed negotiations with "Israel, the Palestine Liberation Organization and various militias held in Jerusalem, New York and Beirut."

In Beirut, meanwhile, Palestinian mourners fired machine-guns into the air and vowed vengeance for Abu Hassan, the planner of a guerrilla attack on the Israeli team at the 1972 Munich Olympics who was slain Monday.

On the diplomatic front, U.S. envoy Alfred Atherton continued meetings with Israeli officials, and Prime Minister Menachem Begin said there are still "outstanding differences" after a week of negotiations over a draft peace treaty with Egypt.

Bomber Held U.K. Passport

BEIRUT (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization said Tuesday that a man holding a British passport plotted the assassination of guerrilla leader Ali Hassan Salameh.

A statement distributed by the official Palestinian news agency WAFA identified the man as a Peter Streigher and said he arranged Monday's car-bomb assassination of Salameh in which seven other persons also were killed. The 38-year-old Salameh, codenamed Abu Hassan, was the alleged mastermind of the 1972 massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics.

WAFA said a special PLO committee formed to investigate the deaths found that Streigher, "who carried a British passport number 260896 had rented the booby-trapped Volkswagen that killed Salameh and his bodyguards."

The statement said Streigher had contacted the Lebanese company Lena Car from abroad and rented a car for use inside Lebanon as of last Wednesday.

It said Streigher arrived in Beirut on Wednesday and received his rented car from the Lebanese company early Thursday. He left his hotel Sunday morning after putting the final touches to his plan and handed over the car to others who carried out the assassination.

The statement did not say if the committee had determined if Streigher was still in Lebanon.

Salameh, his four bodyguards and three pedestrians were killed as the explosives-packed Volkswagen blew up when Salameh's station wagon passed by.

The PLO earlier accused Israeli agents of assassinating Salameh. He topped Israel's list of wanted Palestinian guerrillas for his reputed role in the Olympics massacre that killed 11 Israeli athletes.

Maybe the Best Option?

Old age pensions and family allowance cheques have been so long a traditional part of federal services to all Canadians that it seems unthinkable to eliminate such programs for all but the needy. Yet as the squeeze on government spending grows tighter and tighter, that option is increasingly being explored. Now such an august body as the Canadian Council on Social Develoment has recommended that the government consider abolishing the universality of some social benefit programs.

The council is preparing a major report that concludes that governmental social programs have not fulfilled their basic goal of redistributing some of Canada's wealth to the poorer members of her society. One reason for this, it is suggested, is that some programs, notably the family allowance and the basic old age pension, are given to everyone, regardless of income. Even unemployment insurance, designed to benefit those who find themselves in financial difficulty because they are out of work, goes to everyone who meets unemployment criteria, regardless of what other money might be available to them.

That means that a person over the age of 65 draws an old age pension even if his regular pension is $50,000 a year or more; that the children of millionaires receive family allowances; that a woman who has been working can draw unemployment insurance even if her husband is still earning $30,000 or more a year.

For a government to try to change this policy would doubtless be politically unpopular; no one would be happy to lose benefits he's been receiving from the government for years. In some programs, such as unemployment insurance, people could correctly argue that it is officially an insurance program, into which they have paid benefits, not a welfare program. After all, the car insurance companies pay for the repair of all their clients' cars, not just the poor clients.

Despite that, it seems the government may soon find the alternative of eliminating the universality of some programs the most palatable alternative it has. Deficits keep rising, taxpayers keep complaining, and the government has to do something. Already Ottawa is trying to implement a restraint program, but cutting back a piece of program here, a bit of program there is not enough to make a really significant dent in the federal budget.

Much more major surgery may soon be needed. And the idea of cutting payments to people who really don't need the money may be seen as a better idea than cutting programs that help those who really do need money, or cutting programs that contribute significantly to our social fabric (such as justice programs) or cutting programs that offer significant benefits in terms of providing jobs.

It wouldn't be a particularly good option, but it might be the best option we've got.

Responsibilities and Obligations

A simple proposal to alleviate the finance problems of universities and colleges was put forward last week by Ontario Education Minister Bette Stephenson.

She would have graduating students pledge to donate a small sum, say $25, every year to their alma mater.

"If every single one of us after leaving [university] were to even give $25 a year to the institute, we'd have very few problems with finances," she told an audience of students at Ryerson Polytechnical Institiute in Toronto.

The idea shocked her listeners. They suggested she was evading the issue, that the government was avoiding responsibility for higher education.

"I'm talking about a personal commitment. Is $25 more a year going to kill you?" she asked the Ryerson students.

Admittedly, that's no answer to the immediate, pressing problems of Ryerson or any other university or college. But is it such a terrible idea?

What's so wrong about expecting students who benefit from several years of higher education (but actually pay with their fees not more than a fifth of the actual cost) to turn something back to the institution as an aid to those coming on behind them?

"All of society benefits from the education system," one Ryerson student shouted at Stephenson, and therefore business should pay more towards its costs.

But who among the millions of people who have passed through Canada's universities and community colleges in the last 15 years of vast expansion in the education system has taken the opposite view, that he personally has benefitted and owes society a debt that some day will require payment?

Not many, we think. The angry reaction to the minister's idea suggests a nasty, selfish attitude — by no means limited to students, but the exchange between Stephenson and the Ryerson students provided a good example. Similar examples of public mean-mindedness are numerous in this "gimme, gimme" era.

To be reminded occasionally that with the rights and privileges of citizenship there go responsibilities and obligations as well is not a bad thing.

BLISS IS A BIG 8 . . .

Quebec Leads In Road Deaths

By WILLIAM JOHNSON
The Globe and Mail

QUEBEC — A Quebecer's car is his castle, his pride, his joy, his home away from home.

Bliss is a Quebecer driving down the highway in a big eight-cylinder car with all the options, radio playing, radial tires eating up the scenery of Maine or Florida at 120 kilometres an hour. More than anyone else in the world, too, the Quebecer is likely to go to his final rendezous with his Maker driving his beloved car.

These happy thoughts tinged with melancholy passed through my head as I read Young Quebecers and Road Accidents, Epidemilogy and Prevention. The study for the Quebec Ministry of Transport was done by sociologists, economists and political scientists, and their approach is broad. It confirms my own more modest observations about Quebec on wheels.

All Ages, Both Sexes

Quebecers have an unfortunate proneness for killing each other. At all ages, for both sexes, Quebecers hold the crown. Norwegians killed off about 12.5 persons per 100,000 in 1975 and Great Britain about the same. Quebecers killed 30.6.

Mind you, that was less than the 36 per 100,000 who died in Quebec road accidents in 1973. Neither Swedes, Danes, Finns, Americans, Germans nor other Canadians can compete with Quebecers for death on the road.

The closest competitor is France. Is there an atavistic Gallic spirit, a shared ancestral collective unconscious, a dash to a crash that asserts itself on either side of the ocean when the cousins get behind a wheel?

Ontario has more cars per capita than Quebec, but Quebec easily outstrips Ontario in fatalities. The Quebec car death rate was 25.5 per 100,000 in 1976 compared to 18.1 in Ontario.

The study documents that Quebecers like their cars, especially big eight-cylinder models:

"The Quebec market differs from the rest of the North American continent in its disdain for compact models and its taste for luxury in car equipment. A spokesman for General Motors told us recently of the astonishment of the marketing services in Oshawa at the avalanche of orders for cars with luxury equipment coming from Quebec."

Of 18 outdoor activities, such as bicycling, hiking, skating or skiing, a survey found that driving around in a car is the one most favored by Quebecers. But the study laments that Quebec drivers give little heed to the traffic laws, and breaking them becomes so routine that there is resentment against the driver who won't.

"Often, the driver who strictly observes the law will become an outlaw for the other drivers who are near him. The signs used to single out the driver respectful of the speed limit are well known: Blaring horns, passing him so as to cut him off, dirty looks from drivers who pass . . ."

For Quebecers, the study of their driving habits will only confirm what everyone already knows. For people in the border states where Quebecers are notorious, it will also come as deja vu. Each summer, they live in terror of the annual invasion from the north.

No Quebecer worth his salt likes to be passed on the highway. He views it as a discourtesy, if not a challenge. To prevent such snubs, all Quebecers drive at all times, at all speeds, in the left lane. Except to pass, of course, which is done in the inside lane.

"We speed up whenever another driver wants to pass us on the road," the study quotes Energy Minister Guy Joron as saying.

Stop signs, in Quebec, have the same meaning as Yield signs in other jurisdictions: The driver reduces his speed and proceeds with caution. A green light means go, an amber light, during its first few seconds, is a more urgent amber. Only when the eye has adjusted to the red, does it mean stop.

Pity the Poor Pieton

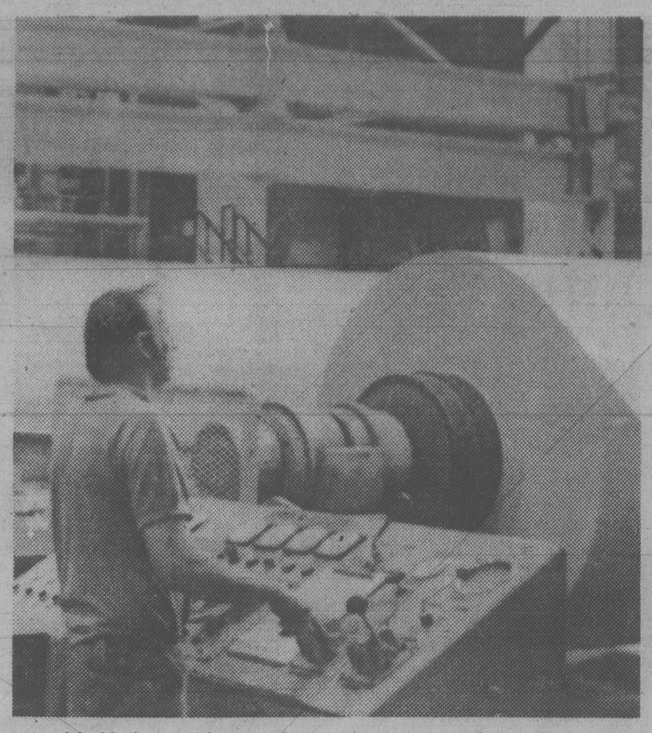
Newcomers to Quebec always note a quaint local custom about which oldtimers are blase: The state of war between cars and pedestrians. The word for pedestrians is pieton. Pedestrian is not a flattering word in English, but pieton is downright hostile in French.

The study observes: "The experience of crossing on foot an intersection in Montreal or Quebec is very different from crossing a similar intersection in Toronto, Calgary or Vancouver.

Masterly understatement! Pietons and drivers play a constant game of chicken. The pietons stream across on a red light: The trick is not to let the first car get moving. A dense crowd can immobilize a whole line of cars, especially if the first belongs to a tourist. The drivers honk their horns, race their engines, edge and sometimes lurch forward.

The pietons win most encounters, but when they don't they end up on the street, as the sad statistics on pieton deaths bear out. There is an element of hope, though: As pietons get older, their survival rate is better.

The pieton death rate in Quebec is more than double Ontario's up to age 35; then the gap narrows.



Half the softwood needed for U.S. paper-making is growing in that country's national forests

THE ECONOMIST

The latest government recommendations on the use and preservation of America's forests, announced January 4, have pleased neither industry nor conservation groups.

The recommendations cover 62 million acres of the 187 million forested acres which are owned and managed by the federal government, chiefly through the Department of the Interior and the Forest Service.

At present, and for the 18 months of the study, these 62 million acres have been protected as wilderness. No roads have been built there; no motorbikes have been allowed to blaze trails through the woods; grazing has been allowed only if the animals are herded on foot or on horseback.

The lumber companies, and those which want to prospect for oil and natural gas under the forests, have been made to cool their heels. Now, however, the Forest Service has decided that 36 million acres should be opened for timber-cutting, mining and motor vehicles.

The argument for "unlocking" the roadless areas of the national forest is a persuasive one. More than half the softwood needed for paper-making and housebuilding is now growing in the national forests. Last year they provided a quarter of all the timber used in the United States.

Under the efficient and highly localized management of the Forest Service the stands of timber — principally Douglas fir, western hemlock, pine and spruce — are carefully culled and improved, with some areas judiciously burned over to encourage new seedlings. By contrast with the 296 million acres of privately owned forest, much of which is in small parcels of poor quality and unculled timber, the federal forests are commercially attractive. Yet they are, to a great, extent, inaccessible to industry.

Lumber companies themselves own great tracts of the forests, especially in the west. But as the demand for timber and paper relentlessly increases, the companies cannot replace trees at the rate they cut them.

By 1980, it is estimated that the lumber industry in the far west will be cutting 15 million board feet a year more than it replaces. For the companies, the solution is obvious: They should be allowed to take more timber from the federal forests.

Several conditions, however, prevent them. Under the Resources Planning Act, only 14 billion board feet — the amount that can be replaced in a year by replanting — may be cut from the national forest. In fact, for various reasons, and not least because large tracts have been under consideration as wilderness, the Forest Service has been offering cuttings of only 11 to 12 billion board feet in the last two fiscal years.

The federal government and the lumber industry are far from being established enemies.

Between the claims of companies and conservationists, the Forest Service and the Department of the Interior try to keep a circumspect balance.

The rangers themselves, who have to decide whether a drilling rig may be erected or a road built to a picnic site, are both outdoorsmen and businessmen. Indeed, federal policy towards the forests in the last year has been marked far more by fears about inflation than by sentimentality about trees and mountains.

In May, at the urging of the council on wage and price stability, the harvesting target was increased by six per cent and the Forest Service was upheld in its claim to clear-cut 600,000 acres of forest in East Texas without making an environmental impact statement.

Nonetheless, timber cutting in the national forests cannot be extended on any generous scale.

This is not for lack of material: There is enough mature wood in the forests to support an increase of 25 per cent in commercial logging, as even conservationists acknowledge. But the Forest Service, on its budget of $1.5 billion, can barely cover its own logging costs, let alone replace and improve the trees on the wider scale that would be necessary.

Mr. Carter would probably be happy to give the companies more freedom. But inflation, which makes that policy sensible, also makes it difficult.

Gays Sprucing Up Haight-Ashbury

By LARRY KRAMER
Washington Post

SAN FRANCISCO — The street sign on the corner of Haight and Ashbury streets here is perched atop its pole.

That may not seem like an important bit of news, but in the old days, that sign was stolen so often by souvenir-seekers that the city just stopped replacing it.

It has been good news, not bad news, that has helped Haight-Ashbury lose its standing as a tourist attraction. It is fast becoming just another (albeit fascinating) San Francisco neighborhood.

A renaissance of sorts has taken place in this former mecca of the dropped-out generation. People on the streets are no longer out-of-towners, but San Franciscans eating, drinking and shopping in what has become the newest chic neighborhood.

Gone are the droves of drug addicts, misfits and lost souls who wandered aimlessly along Haight Street, main street of a neighborhood immortalized by the music of the mid-1960's.

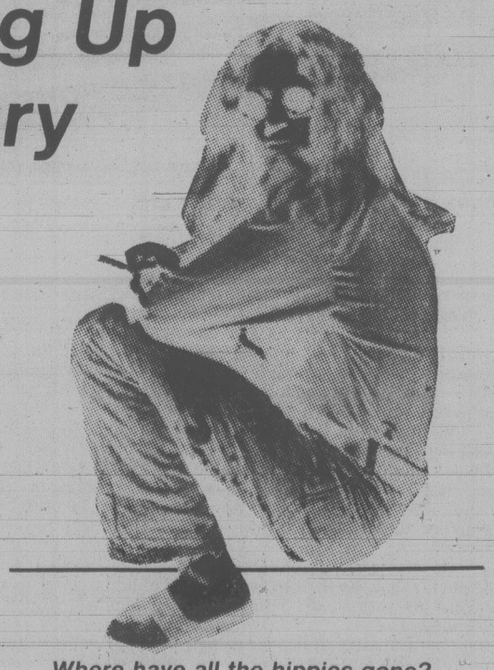
Instead, there are new groups of leather-jacketed, short-haired, blue-jeaned men — mostly gay — walking the streets and wandering in and out of new, trendy shops

Gays are moving into the Haight in record numbers, according to city officials, and turning around entire blocks within a few short months. The pattern is the same: They will buy up a series of well-worn Victorian houses, renovate them and clean up the neighborhood. The result: Real estate values begin to soar.

For some people — notably blacks and other minorities who are residents of the neighborhoods being renovated — the trouble has just begun. The rapid increases in real estate values have resulted in soaring rents and taxes, and many elderly and poor people are being forced to leave their long-time homes.

It has been a long, tough road for the Haight since the days of "flowers in your hair," and many of the locals are glad to see the iron gates come down from the fronts of grocery and liquor stores, even if it means higher rents.

Figures from the city planners' office reveal that the average sale price of a house in the Haight was $46,207 in 1970, jumped to $80,109 in 1975 (a 75-per-cent increase) and has recently soared to more than $125,000.



Where have all the hippies gone?

Perhaps most important has been the change in the age distribution of Haight residents. The percentage of people under 19 has dropped by 34 per cent and 20-to-24-year-olds by 19 per cent. At the same time, the population share of 25-to-44-year-olds has increased by 46 per cent.

Other statistics paint an even rosier picture for the future of the Haight. In 1970, only 14 per cent of the homes there were occupied by their owners. Today, more than 55 per cent are owner-occupied.

"I am pleased by the rejuvenation of Haight Street," says mayor Dianne Feinstein, "because it is enabling the Haight-Ashbury neighborhood to once again be a productive and livable community. The sight of new storefronts, increased pedestrian traffic and more attractive homes along Haight Street shows us that we can rescue neighborhoods from urban decay with intelligent planning and the commitment of local residents."

After the Teething Trouble, Wide Acclaim

FOR SHEER SPLENDOR the University Centre concert hall has no equal in Victoria's cultural community.

It has been open for six months and despite some painful teething problems the building has been acclaimed as an architectural and acoustic achievement, its copper-clad canopy a new campus landmark for administrative, social and artistic activities.

Inside, the structure is a marvel of sight and sound. Nothing quite like it has ever been achieved before.

Its windowless walls are pleasing and interesting to look at whether draped with adjustable and colorful wall hangings or not, and whether seen brightly outlined or behind subtle accent lights.

The concept is something relatively new here, a "surround hall," offering an intimacy familiar to some European concert-goers. Only two others exist in North America, one in Denver, one in Mexico City. Its initial success has made it a prototype for more — a successor to Massey Hall slated for Toronto, and a new music centre for San Francisco.

A third surround hall of this type, being designed for Melbourne, Australia, also will incorporate features of the UVic auditorium.

University orchestra conductor Dr. George Corwin finds the auditorium an exciting place to work, and as a listener during a performance by the Prague String Quartet, the hall was "nothing short of miraculous."

But if there are still bugs to be winkled out, the sound consultant's head acoustician, Ted Schultz, of Boston is available to assist in further adjustments.

David Titterton, who manages the centre, said technical problems were annoying from the outset, causing some concert-goers to be harshly critical of the $8 million venture. But the faults have been or will be corrected, he promised.

An experience level is required to properly operate such an innovative facility: "We've made some mistakes in learning to work it. But we've also made great steps," he said.

Apart from the acoustics, which is itself a highly specialized area, there have been difficulties with lighting and lighting control.

Titterton said the main lighting was designed for concert-size orchestra, so it was a matter of working out what will be suitable for smaller groups. The problem is made more difficult by the fact there is no traditional arch over the stage where lighting is located conventionally.

And initially there were faulty switches in the lighting console, which have since been replaced.

The unconventional walls, although important for their acoustic engineering, also are designed to help support much of the unobstructed seating, provide easy access and comfortable air circulation.

No seat of the entire 1,275 capacity is more than 79 feet from centre stage.

From anywhere in the house there is a view of nearly every other seat as well as unimpeded vision of what's happening among the performers or musicians.

Design chief Terence Williams, 36, of Wade Williams Partnership in Victoria, had three architectural objectives:

— Sightlines from each seat "very good."

— A high degree of intimacy between audience and performer.

Each had to be met without serious loss of another, and for that reason a balcony was incorporated to permit maximum seating within a short distance of the stage.

Williams said there had to be provision for 300 choir seats and for the later installation of a pipe organ in the loft behind the open stage.

Accordingly, some of the choir seats are removeable and the organ will soon be installed. There also will be times when the audience may use the loft seats enclosing three sides of the stage.

"It was a shame to use 300 seats for choir only in a learning institution, so we made them so they could be used also by the audience," he said.

It was realized people seated behind the stage would not be as well served acoustically as those in front. So each of the high-backed airliner-style chairs is fitted with a loudspeaker.

These speakers were not connected during early performances in the hall, but when the hall is properly tuned for the type of live music being performed, any acoustic deficiencies for listeners to sides and rear of the orchestra may be compensated by electronic amplification.

Architect Williams: nine on a scale of 10 for achieved goals

In addition, people in the loft, being closest of any to the stage, get the rare opportunity of observing at arm's length the intricate performing techniques of instrumentalists and conductors.

Although primarily for choir, orchestra and small musical groups or soloists, the auditorium is adaptable to opera, ballet, film projection or speech arts. It has limited potential for dramatic purposes because there is no proscenium, but the stage might be adapted to theatre-in-the-round settings.

Williams travelled to concert halls in other parts of Canada, the U.S., U.K. and Scandinavia researching the methods of solving acoustic problems.

He was instructed by acoustic consultants Bolt Beranek Newman Inc., of Boston, to strive for a musical reverberation time of 2.1 seconds, meaning that a note of music would remain "live" for that interval.

For speech, the specified reverb time was to be 1.3 seconds, and in both cases the stipulation was met, giving breadth to the sound, achieved through variable absorption surfaces on the walls and canopy of the auditorium.

As indicated earlier, the walls play a key role, their fluted concrete surfaces designed to reflect sound through a range of frequencies and thick enough to blanket exterior noise. No two walls are parallel to avoid any possibility of echo.

The canopy is a double layer, again for insulation, and allows for an irregular lower surface to break sound patterns into appropriate reflections.

Horizontal banners may be used like the wall hangings to alter sound absorption as required.

These reflective clouds, Williams said, are designed to help distribute unamplified acoustic sound to all parts of the main floor, balconies and seating behind the orchestra.

Being innovations, they require the passage of time and experience to teach operators their most effective use in tuning the hall, Williams said.

The same applies to the damping effect of velour wall hangings which may be raised or dropped to any desired level according to the required sound quality. The cloth panels reduce or modify the reflectivity of concrete wall surfaces.

Williams said it requires some effort and time to set up the auditorium for each type of performance. It makes significant difference to the sound projection whether there is to be a live, unamplified concert or recital, whether the in-house amplifier system is used, or whether a performer's own sound system will be employed.

He said that despite the insistence by touring performers that their own systems are best, it is technically and esthetically better to use the equipment designed for the hall.

Unfortunately, it has been difficult to persuade visitors of this and on some occasions audiences have complained of poor sound in some parts of the auditorium.

Williams said in the case of a recent Moe Koffman concert, the musicians arrived too late to allow connection with the house system, and as a result people seated in some parts of the auditorium said they could not hear the flute solos.

The architect was asked if his expectations had been met when the concert hall was completed.

"I guess my expectations went up and down. When we were designing we felt very confident . . . I think we made all the design decisions that would reinforce our confidence.

"But in construction, it goes through various stages, and I wondered. I became more relaxed as the absorption materials were introduced."

When the job was done acoustic engineers came in to tune the structure using live sound. A small chamber choir was chosen to provide the music.

"When they first began singing, I knew it was going to be good," Williams said, "and when the string quartet played the sound was very good. Then we did the fine tuning."

With that kind of experience it is possible to compile a "recipe book" of adjustments to meet every sound requirement according to performance and audience, he said.

For amplified performances, he expects the learning process for sound balance will take longer.

Williams explained how the design team dealt with background noise, for example from heating and ventilation systems, for which an ambient noise rating of 15 was specified.

When tested the hall was even quieter than expected with a rating of only 13. By comparison, a typical office building has ambient noise of 35.

The architect said the design team ranged between two and 10 persons during four years of planning and building, including consultation with theatre specialists, engineers, musicians, interior designers, the university buildings and grounds authority — "lots and lots of help from all sorts of people."

Looking back Williams said "of course there are some minor things we would have liked to do differently.

"I think having designed the building, seen it built and heard it perform, we're very pleased."

He said it was the most technically involved work he had ever done, "but by and large we are pleased," and he rated the hall nine on a scale of 10 for achieved goals.

"Generally speaking, all of us who work in there as musicians think the expectations we had have been realized," said orchestra conducter Corwin.

He said he had listened from various points of the hall as music was being played and was unable to find any bad spots or weaknesses from a listener's viewpoint.

There was, however, a problem on stage with wind instrumentalists seated toward the rear of the orchestra. Corwin said they were not able to hear the strings as well as they should, but he thought this could be corrected by adjusting the moveable clouds.

Corwin went to four different parts of the auditorium during the appearance of the Prague String Quartet.

"To hear a string quartet in a room that size, and heard the way I heard it, it is nothing short of miraculous," the conductor said.

In a performance by up to 70 musicians of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, the result was "wonderful," and was successfully recorded, Corwin said.

Part of the achievement is due to an afterthought in the form of a small, portable wooden fence which may be set out behind a small musical group to act as a sounding board. Corwin said this improves sound for persons in the main balcony and gives the musicians a sense of community by allowing them to hear each other.

Recipes for setting up the hall's acoustics have been set down for string orchestra, violin and piano, chamber orchestra and romantic string orchestra.

"When they first began singing, I knew it was going to be good," says architect Terence Williams, "and when the string quartet played the sound was very good. Then we did the fine-tuning."

Senate Probe on Off-Track Betting

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday the Senate will be asked to study off-track betting on horse races and no decision on legalizing it will be made until the Senate reports.

Whelan told reporters that Senator Ray Perreault, government leader in the Senate, would seek agreement in the Upper House to examine the off-track betting.

"Personally I don't think all the questions about off-track betting have been answered," Whelan said. The public needed to know where the money from wagering will go and who will benefit.

Whelan wouldn't say whether he supported an attempt by major track operators to have the Criminal Code amended to legalize off-track betting. Currently betting is allowed only at race tracks.

Last month the minister told a special meeting here of all segments of the industry that he would have a decision by the time the Commons resumed sitting whether to approve betting. However, he has left the impresson he is fundamentally against the system.

After a meeting with members of the Liberal caucus, Whelan said that even if there is enough support for off-track betting, it is unlikely he could get the law changed before the Commons dissolves for the general election expected by July.

The Senate report would likely take three months to complete.

Toyota Prices Lowered

MONTREAL (CP) — Retail prices on the Toyota Celica have gone down by $200, and by $100 on the Cressida and 2,200-cc pickups, to reflect part the three-per-cent reduction in federal sales tax announced last November, Canadian Motor Industries (CMI) Ltd. have announced.

Don McArthur, marketing vice-president of CMI, said the price reductions are less than the full sales tax cut because of increasing costs.

Liberal MP Raines Wants CBC Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal backbencher Mark Raines is so disgusted with the fact that television newsreader Knowlton Nash makes more money than the prime minister, he wants a Commons committee to investigate the entire CBC.

Raines (Burnaby-Seymour) said it is incredible that the anchorman for The National news earns a reported $85,000 to $90,000 a year for reading a 15-minute segment of a 25-minute newscast five nights a week.

"It's more than the prime minister makes. It's more than just about anybody in Canada makes," said Raines, a former broadcaster.

Such a high salary was especially reprehensible at a time when ordinary Canadians were being asked to restrain their wage demands to help fight inflation.

A Commons committee examination of the CBC might prove illuminating, Raines said.

"I am very curious about what they do with their half billion dollars they are gifted with every year by the Canadian taxpayer."

It was "preposterous" for the government to hand over that much money to the Crown corporation without any accountability.

The CBC's mandate was to provide distinctive Canadian programming, not to put corporation executives into plush broadloomed offices with lifetime jobs at high salaries, he said.

Raines
. . .'more than P.M.'

Robert Daudlin, parliamentary secretary to State Secretary John Roberts, said the CBC is in a very competitive business and must pay high salaries to attract good people.

He could not disclose Nash's salary because it was being studied by an arbitrator as the result of a grievance launched by CBC employees.

The arbitration was held behind closed doors and the CBC had not yet received the arbitrator's report, Daudlin said.

Oil Supply Still Problem Energy Commission Says

The growth in demand for energy in B.C. is declining significantly but oil supply remains a problem, a year-long study by the B.C. Energy Commission has determined.

The forecast for the next 15 years predicts total provincial energy requirements will grow at an average compound rate of 2.5 per cent per year, the study released Tuesday says.

"This compares with the 5.8 per cent average annual growth in energy use actually experienced in the previous 10-year period, 1968 to 1977," it adds.

Commission chairman Norm Gish said B.C.'s future energy concern is oil.

"We will become more and more dependent on outside sources, principally Alberta, for our oil, perhaps for as much as 87 per cent of our requirements by 1992," he said in a release accompanying the report.

The decline in growth of energy demand is contrary to similar studies by B.C. Hydro, especially the 12 per cent share of total provincial energy which Hydro supplies in the form of electricity.

Last year Hydro predicted an average 6.2 per cent increase annually for its customer requirements to 1992. The energy commission puts that particular growth rate at 3.5 per cent.

"Compounded annually, these two forecasts produce a significantly different energy picture for electricity in 1992," Energy Minister Jim Hewitt said.

But the two organizations have long had different energy forecasts, so Hewitt called on them to adopt a common approach co-ordinated with the ministry of economic development.

Despite oil supply problems, Gish said the province's natural gas supply is excellent; there is considerable coal potential; wood waste will be used more in industrial energy supply; and there are alternatives for additional electrical generation.

"In summary, we have many more options and a far greater degree of self-reliance in energy supply than most parts of Canada and the Western world," Gish said, although admitting the choices facing energy planners will still not be easy ones.

"But choices do exist."

Victoria Team Now at Equator

A team of Victoria scientists arrived at the equator last week as part of Canada's contribution to the First Global Experiment on weather and climate research.

They reached their first objective almost immediately by finding the equatorial undercurrent that will be subject of much study.

The research vessel Parizeau from the Institute of Ocean Science at Patricia Bay left for Honolulu on an assignment for the Global Atmospheric Research Program and has started meteorological and oceanographic field work.

From 150 W. long., the ship cruises back and forth about three degrees north and south of the Equator over a span of 1,000 miles.

IOS spokesman Mike Miyaki said balloons are released to sound the upper atmosphere four times daily in the met program while oceanographers take readings to give a profile of ocean characteristics.

A team from the University of B.C. Institute of Oceanography led by Dr. Bill Crawford is responsible for obtaining data on such features as the mixing of the undercurrent with surrounding water.

The rest of the equatorial Pacific is being covered by ships from France, Australia and the U.S.

Miyaki said considerable importance is attached to the undercurrent phenomenon because it influences the upwelling of cold water on the shores of lower California and South America and surface currents.

These currents, he points out, also contain 20-30 per cent of the ocean's heat.

The party from IOS, led by Stan Huggett and Terry Curren, found the undercurrent to be as strong as the Gulf Stream and comparable to local tidal currents on the B.C. coast, in the range of 2-3 knots.

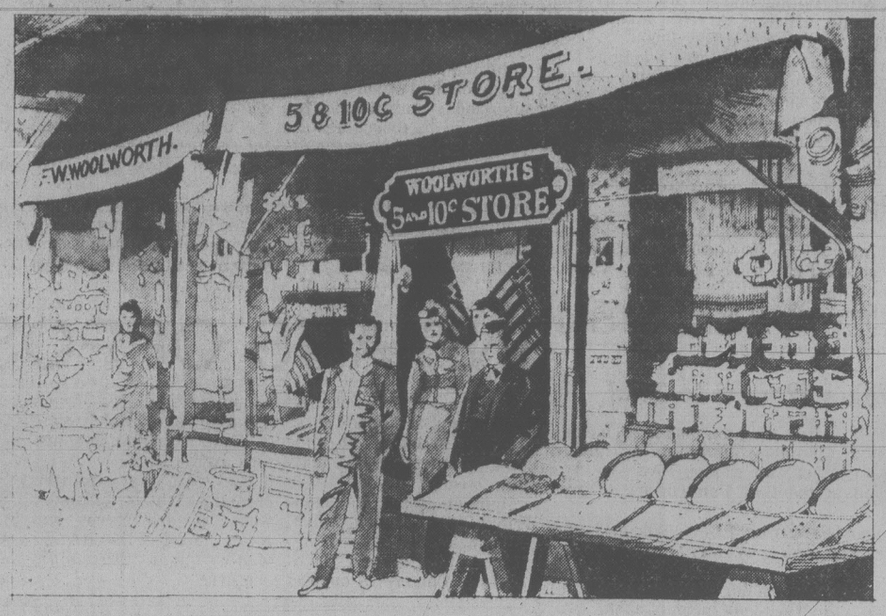
A Man's Dream...



100 years ago a man had a vision and like most really good ideas, it was simple. That man was Frank Winfield Woolworth and his great idea was the "five and ten". His idea began in the United States but it was soon brought to Canada and the world. To-day, on the eve of the 100th anniversary of the Woolworth tradition that began in Lancaster, Pennsylvania June 21, 1879, the Woolco division salutes its parent, F. W. Woolworth for one hundred years of outstanding performance and progress in retailing in Canada and around the world.

100 Years Later...

Woolworth's grew beyond everyone's wildest dreams and became an international institution with a unique home town flavour. Shoppers have universally counted on Woolworth's sound values, wide selection and low prices but, best of all, the atmosphere of the familiar red front stores everywhere has been warm and friendly. Woolworth is NOW known in many communities as the largest most complete department store in town. A recent example of this is the new Woolworth department store in Carbonear, Newfoundland opened in November 1978. It is the latest in a new generation of stores that will be opening across Canada in the years ahead.

Our own Woolco division which began a short seventeen years ago, has already made its mark on the Canadian retail scene. We already operate in nine of Canada's ten provinces and late last year opened our 100th store. The Woolco department store operation has enjoyed phenomenal success due in part to its adherence to the principles of quality and value that have been inherent in the Woolworth tradition since 1879. One of the latest Woolco stores, opened last November is in Guildford Town Shopping Centre in Surrey, British Columbia.

Best Wishes to Woolworth on their 100th Anniversary

Mounties Trap Four in Fraud

PENTICTON (CP) — Four men pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges arising from an attempt to arrange a marriage of convenience aimed at allowing one of them to remain in Canada.

Paramjit Singh Grewal, Surindor Pawl Singla, Sohan Singh Grewal and Raghbir Singh Dhillan admitted their part in the attempt after falling into a trap set by the RCMP using two female officers. A fifth man, Bhusham Lal Singla, was given a stay of proceedings.

Police, who had recorded and monitored meetings between the men and the two women, said they acted after they received a complaint from a man who said his sister had been approached to take part in an arranged marriage that would enable Dhillam to stay in the country after his temporary permit had elapsed.

Tariff Aid for Fruit Growers

KELOWNA (CP) — New tariff agreements expected soon will ease what many B.C. fruit growers believe to be an inequity in competition with Washington State, provincial Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said.

He told the annual convention of the B.C. Fruit Growers Association that the new agreements result from trade and tariff negotiations now concluding in Geneva.

Judge Orders Women to Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rejecting motions that charges be dismissed, a British Columbia Supreme Court judge Tuesday ordered the trial of two women involved in a hostage-taking incident at the B.C. Penitentiary to proceed.

Jury selection began in the trial of Betsy Wood, 48, and Gay Hoon, 32, after the order by Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon.

Grain Worker Talks Break

VANCOUVER (CP) — Contract talks between the Grain Workers Union, local 333, and five grain companies broke down Tuesday after the union refused to meet two demands set by the companies.

Henry Kancs, union secretary-treasurer, said demands not to discuss labor issues with the media and not to bring up the matter of last year's Anti-Inflation Board roll-back of pensions are unacceptable to the union.

He said the union will not attend a meeting Friday set up by the grain companies. The companies—Alberta Wheat Pool, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Pacific Elevators Ltd., United Grain Growers Ltd. and Pioneer Grain Terminal Ltd.—have refused to outline proposals for a new contract unless the union agrees to the conditions.

Child-Beater Goes to Jail

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Kenneth Parks of Chase, convicted of child abuse, failing to appear in court and perjury, was sentenced to two years less a day in provincial court here Tuesday.

Judge William Diebolt imposed a maximum six months for the beatings Parks administered to his wife's 22-month-old child in February, 1977.

Parks also received six months for his failure to appear and one year less a day for perjury.

Socreds 'Blew It' With Railwest

A multi-million-dollar rail car order placed by the Canadian wheat board in eastern Canada proves B.C. Railway's Railwest plant at Squamish should never have closed, NDP leader Dave Barrett said Tuesday.

Barrett was referring to the board's recent $82 million order with plants in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

He said if the NDP is returned to power in the next provincial election, expected this spring, it will try to reopen the Railwest plant, about 80 kilometres north of Vancouver. The plant was closed last year by the Social Credit government.

"However it may be too late now. (Premier) Bill Bennett and the Socreds have blown another one."

AIR, WATER IMPROVING, SAYS MAIR

B.C.'s environment is improving generally — and significantly in some areas of the province, says a report on air and water released Monday.

Environment Minister Rafe Mair said in a news release the improvement in environmental quality is related directly to the regulations imposed under the Pollution Control Act.

Mair said the report is the first published use of a computerized system set up to monitor environmental trends in the province and correlates information from 8,000 test sites located in areas particularly sensitive to environmental change — usually near industrial plants and outfalls.

Gov't Moves on Spirit Dancers

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The provincial government will try to persuade the Salish Indians next week to have physical examinations before they join in spirit dances and tribal initiation rites that are sometimes fatal.

At least four members of the Salish tribe have died during secret rites and spirit dances in recent years. All four deaths occurred in the Chilliwack area, about 60 miles east of Vancouver near the U.S. border.

Deputy attorney-general Richard Vogel and the RCMP will meet with Indian leaders next week to discuss the problem, a spokesman for the provincial attorney-general's office said Monday.

Spirit dancing was banned by the British Columbia government in 1950 but is still widely practised by West Coast Indians. While the tribal ceremonies vary, the ritual almost always subjects the participant to extreme discomfort.

In most, the initiate is blindfolded, stripped and subjected to various ordeals. These usually involve immersion in cold water, running barefoot over rough terrain, fasting, tests of strength and sometimes physical beatings.

The inquests into the four deaths all recommended stronger enforcement of the ban on spirit dancing, but investigating RCMP officers emphasized the difficulty of controlling the secret rites.

The spokesman said it was hoped physical examinations would help prevent more deaths, but recognized that little could be done without the co-operation of Indian leaders.

The government decided to act following the Jan. 8 death of Shirley Doreen Point. Police said she appeared to have suffered injuries in a dancing ceremony on the Chehalis Reserve, near Chilliwack.

In December, 1977, Elliott Henry, 28, died of a heart attack following a four-day dancing ceremony on a reserve near Chilliwack. Police found evidence of beating, dehydration and lack of food.

In 1974, an inquest into the death of Laura Louise Leon was told she contracted a viral infection after being plunged into freezing lake water. A police witness testified the incident was part of a tribal secret ceremony.

INDIANS OPPOSE SPA

OSOYOOS (CP) — Okanagan Indians are opposing a proposal to build a health spa and motel on a lake that they consider sacred.

Members of the Okanagan Tribal Chiefs Council, which represents 2,500 Indians, appeared at a village council meeting Monday to oppose rezoning of the area around Spotted Lake, which they said has spiritual and historic significance.

They said they are concerned that the development would disturb cairns and rocks placed in the area by visiting Indians through the centuries.

Fee Hike Delay Sought

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

University of Victoria Alma Mater Society president Dave Connell will ask the UVic board of governors to postpone plans to raise student fees until changes are made to the B.C. Student Aid Program.

Eight proposed changes to student aid requirements are outlined in a letter Connell sent last week to Education Minister Pat McGeer.

Copies of the letter were sent to the Universities Council of B.C., the presidents of UVic, the University of B.C. and Simon Fraser.

If the proposed changes are made, fee hikes won't be a problem for students, according to Connell.

The board of governors make the final decision whether to raise student fees.

Tuition will be discussed at the next board meeting and Connell plans to make his presentation then.

His proposed changes to the student aid program are:

—A revision of the independence criteria to help students unable or unwilling to live at home who need financial assistance;

—More assistance to lower income students who are more hesitant than any other group about borrowing money, according to Connell;

—Advertising of student aid in B.C. high schools starting at the Grade 8 level;

—Corresponding grant increases to meet tuition increases that place financial strain on poorer students;

—Additional loans for students with needs greater than the usual loan-grant ceiling provided under the student aid program;

—More grant aid to those travelling from home towns to attend post-secondary institutions;

—Removal of money earned through scholarships or bursaries from the income portion of the aid program to encourage students to work for higher marks;

—Financial aid to graduate or part-time students.

Connell says he has received co-operation from UVic president Howard Petch and others on campus concerned with financial-aid problems facing students.

Most of the proposals have already been submitted to the provincial government during the past few years, but the government has yet to act, Connell says.

Library Chairman Resigning

Greater Victoria Public Library Board chairman Gordon Hutcheson said Tuesday he will step down after four years in the post.

The board will hold its election Feb. 6.

Vice-chairman Shirley Dowell said she will be out of town that day but will run for chairman.

"The mountains we have had to climb have proved to be like Mount Everest," said Hutcheson, who will remain a member of the board.

With Oak Bay agreeing this week to the new central library site on Broughton Street the board now has a mandate from the entire community, he said.

All that remains now is for Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis to make a written commitment that the promised $400,000 provincial grant will be given.

If everything goes well, Hutcheson said the central library could move into its new quarters on Oct. 1.

Hutcheson, a chartered accountant, said he is retiring as chairman to devote more time to his business.

Hefty Hike in Fines Urged in Oil Spills

OTTAWA (CP) — Owners of oil supertankers should be forced to pay for cleanups of all oil spills and for any environmental damage they cause, Progressive Conservative Allan McKinnon told the Commons Tuesday.

Cleaning up oil spills can cost tens of millions of dollars, he said, calling for revisions in the Canada Shipping Act to drastically increase fines for operating a vessel in a way that poses a danger to the environment.

With the shipment of Alaska oil to the United States, West Coast residents have become increasingly concerned about the threat posed by supertankers, the Victoria MP said.

The Shipping Act now provided for maximum fines of $100,000, an amount which once seemed enormous. But it was insignificant to owners of the mammoth supertankers.

He proposed increasing the maximum fine to three times the value of the ship and its cargo, and called for a thorough overhaul of the act to make it more applicable to modern shipping.

Small West Coast communities are often stuck with enormous bills for cleaning up spills, he said. They were unable to claim compensation from the Maritime Pollution Disaster Fund because an archaic provision says the communities must get cabinet approval before cleaning up a spill.

Oil shippers had paid more than $48 million into this fund, but only $645 was paid out in compensation for cleanups and environmenal damage.

Many companies, particularly those registered under "flags of convenience," ran high risks of accidents and oil spills because they did not adequately train their crews and do not bother to repair broken equipment.

Many ships were registered in Liberia because of its lax regulations. It made no attempt to see that ships were in working order and crews properly trained.

Hugh Anderson, Liberal MP for Comox-Alberni, said McKinnon's suggestions for increased fines were commendable and interesting. But he said McKinnon's formula for determining fines could be too severe.

The Shipping Act was not the proper tool to deal with compensation for oil spill damage. Compensation could be sought under this act only if the tanker captain was criminally negligent.

The way to avoid trouble was not to build a proposed oil port at Kitamat for shipment of Alaska oil to the northwestern United States. The United States would benefit from such a port, but Canada would take all the environmental risks.

B.C. Editor Faces Disclosure Battle

hearing that the corporation would attempt to obtain a court order compelling her to comply. She received the notice of motion Tuesday.

Fitzgibbons said the motion seeks an order for imprisonment or fine on grounds that she was in contempt of the arbitration board for "the wilful and knowing failure of Wendy Fitzgibbons to answer under oath questions put to her by the counsel for the B.C. Ferries Corporation, notwithstanding a direction from the board of arbitration that she so answer."

Victoria lawyer John Brewin, who represents the Ferry and Marine Workers' Union in the grievance, said today he is seeking instructions from the union as to whether it will oppose the corporation's action or become involved in any other way.

"But it's basically a matter between the corporation and Ms. Fitzgibbons," he said. "I expect we will not be attending the hearing."

Brewin said in the two days of the hearing to date "very strong evidence was offered that he (the captain of the ferry vessel) was on the bridge, none that he was not on the bridge."

He surmised that the ferry authority, in attempting to force the editor to reveal her sources, is trying to scrape together some evidence that Stalling was not on the bridge at the time of the crash.

"We are not really afraid of it at all," Brewin added. "We don't believe there is any possibility that he was on the car deck."

Fitzgibbon confirmed that she will enter Monday's court hearing in Vancouver without the benefit of counsel, because her employers have declined any such assistance.

The Powell River newspapers are owned by Westpres Publications, which also owns the Sechelt Peninsula Times, the Cowichan Leader in Duncan and the Parksville Progress.

Conacted in Winnipeg, Martin Eva, one of the owners of the company, was reluctant to give any official comment.

"I don't think the company's views on this kind of matter are news," he said.

"The company has maintained a policy of not discussing this or matters connected with it in public."

Asked if the refusal to provide counsel did not amount to leaving Fitzgibbon out on a limb, Eva replied: "Quite the contrary."

He said as a matter of principle a newspaper should not be required to disclose its sources of information.

"Nonetheless the law is the law," he added. "As we all recognize, as long as the laws are there you have to obey them."

Wages Big Issue With Inside Staff

Inside workers at Victoria's city hall and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association (GVLRA) have begun contract negotiations and preliminary indications are wages will be the main issue.

In the first meeting Tuesday, inside workers (members of the Canadian Union of Pubilic Employees) flatly rejected a GVLRA offer of a six per cent wage hike in each year of a two-year agreement.

"We rejected it immediately. It is totally unacceptable over two years," said Rick Doyle, head of the CUPE local.

Doyle said that dispite differences over wages the atmosphere of the opening meeting was good and a few problems were solved.

But he said the talks still have a long way to go before agreement is reached.

The next meeting is Feb. 7.

Doyle's local and the GVLRA have applied for mediators but none has been appointed.

RAIN CAME BUT SO DID DEATH

BLOEMFONTEIN (Reuter) — A South African farmer spent weeks praying for rain. It came with a bolt of lightning that killed his wife and daughter-in-law. Farmer C.H.J. Badenhorst said he thought his prayers had been answered when the rain cascaded down on his wheat and maize. But then the lightning smashed into a blue gum tree under which the farmer was standing with his wife, son and daughter-in-law. Both women were killed but the two men were unharmed.

Poisoned Oranges Threat Surfaces Again

COPENHAGEN (AP) — An Arab warning that Israeli oranges will again be poisoned this year has been sent to member countries of the European Common Market, the Danish government said Tuesday.

The announcement said the warning came from an organization calling itself the Arabian Revolutionary Army and had also been sent to Romania and Yugoslavia.

The warning said the action would not consist only of injecting Israeli oranges with quicksilver but other poisonous substances, less easy to detect, would be used.

The warning also said that the action would be more extensive than a year ago. Then poisoned oranges turned up in several countries and the ensuing panic was costly for Israeli exporters.

The government sent the warning to the state food institute with instructions that it should prepare measures to inspect oranges and keep the public informed if the action actually begins.

Tehran Airport Open Again

source said. Armed troops and military troops were reported patrolling alongside the runways.

Ayatullah Taleghani, the Shiite Moslem leader in Tehran, called a rally at the airport to give the "revolutionary flight" to Paris a sendoff. Several thousand persons pushed past a policeman at a side gate and stood in a driving snow as Taleghani addressed them, but a truckload of soldiers broke up the crowd.

The aged ayatullah, one of Khomeini's chief lieutenants in Iran, was allowed to drive away.

Incoming foreign flights were permitted to land, but their passengers were not allowed to leave the terminal. A number of outgoing flights were cancelled, including a Pan American flight to Istanbul for which some 350 passengers were booked and a British Airways flight to London with 150 seats sold.

Tehran's military governor said in a communique the airport was closed because of "bad weather" and plans by "a group of opportunists" to cause unrest.

Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar, installed by the shah before he left the country on Jan. 16, indicated the military leaders acted without consulting him.

"I don't know anything about these things," he said.

The shah, meanwhile, remained in Morocco, his plans to visit the U.S. still in limbo.

In a rleated development, newspaper reports in Moscow said the strikes in Iran have cut off the supply of Iranian natural gas to regions along the Soviet side of the Soviet-Iranian border. The cutoff was causing severe hardship in the Armenian republic because it depends on the Iranian gas for heating, the report said.

PORTUGAL VOWS CUTS

LISBON (Reuter) — Portuguese Prime Minister Carlos Mota Pinto promised Monday to reduce state spending, help private enterprise and streamline government bureaucracy. "The government will orientate its credit policy toward investment, and not toward consumption," he told television viewers. "The Portuguese people must consume what results from their work and not the product of foreign loans."

Flag-draped duck by Vancouver sculptress Cathie Falk is one of eye-catchers in exhibition called Nationalism in Canadian Art opening today at Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss. Margaret L. Bell, the gallery's education officer, organized the show which will run until March 30.

Concrete Jungle 'Swallows' The Artist

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

ARE CANADIAN artists as much in touch with nature as their counterparts in the early part of the century?

To prove her point, Bell organized the unique exhibition Nationalism in Canadian Art which opened today at the gallery and shows the works of past and present artists.

"The majority of artists don't seem to understand or have the same feeling for the Canadian landscape or countryside as the painters of 50 years ago," she said. "Urbanization seems to have swallowed them up and they are expressing themselves in different ways."

She cited as examples the Group of Seven who expressed their Canadian identity by concentrating on lansdscape painting in the 20s and 30s.

"These artists, especially Tom Thomson who spent part of his time in a lonely cabin in the Canadian wilds, understood the outdoors," she said. "They had a genuine feeling for nature. They expressed themselves in landscapes and founded the Canadian art movement."

She said today's artists are just as nationalistic but move in many other directions. Their works, for the most part, are more regional.

As an example she showed a print in the exhibition by Joyce Wieland depicting formation of lips which appear to be saying "O Canada."

"That painting is ultra-nationalistic," she said.

She said there is also a marked difference between the works of 19th and 20th century painters. The former saw the Canadian countryside through European eyes.

"The big change comes with the Group of Seven," she said.

BELL SAID SHE was lucky to obtain several Group of Seven paintings for the exhibition.

In all, the exhibition will feature 65 paintings, watercolors and prints, plus five pieces of sculpture.

There are interpretations of the Canadian countryside by Cornelius Krieghoff, Robert Whale, Lucius O'Brien, Homer Watson and Suzor-Cote.

Contemporary artists include Jack Shadbolt, Alex Colville and Greg Curnoe.

"Most of the paintings are on loan," Bell said. "Private art galleries also provided us with some exhibits.

"The aim is to show how Canadian art has changed over the years," she said.

"Some people may ask what is Canadian art?" she added. "People still doubtful of its existence may find the answer in this exhibition."

Bell was born in Victoria and attended the University of Edinburgh, majoring in history. She later studied art in London, England.

Foul Bay Site For Parking Lot Despite Protests

Camosun College will proceed with plans for a new parking lot along Foul Bay Road in spite of objections from residents and Mayor Brian Smith of Oak Bay.

"We are going to put the lot where we think it's going to bother the least amount of people," college council chairman Janet Baird said today.

Baird said it's inevitable the location of the contentious lot will upset some people.

Camosun has applied to Oak Bay municipality for a permit to extend existing parking facilities into a 26-acre wooded parcel along Foul Bay Road.

Saanich residents of Argyle and Ernest avenues say the area, known as Hudson's Bay Woods, is a natural wildlife habitat.

On Monday the Oak Bay mayor said the municipality would also protest any plans to develop the wooded site for parking because Foul Bay Road access to it would be borne entirely by Oak Bay.

He spoke after presentations by Camosun administrators of the parking plans.

A preliminary design described by Camosun architect Terence Williams would be "pushing the problem from Saanich residents to an Oak Bay traffic problem," Smith said.

"Don't come to us with a plan that means all new parking will enter and leave on Foul Bay," Smith said.

Smith also suggested the University of Victoria help out by providing Camosun with some of its parking space.

But Baird said today it's up to Saanich and Oak Bay to decide location of the exits.

Camosun is caught in the middle, she said.

She admitted the parking lot will cut into the woods to some extent, but according to a revised plan will no longer extend as far as Ernest.

Camosun made an agreement with Argyle residents not to use Ernest as an exit, Baird said.

Camosun must provide 617 parking spaces at Lansdowne campus before it can construct a $6 million multi-purpose building.

New construction will take up 90 existing parking spaces and Camosun must add 120 stalls to comply with the code.

Baird said the college council has decided to look at pay parking and other alternatives.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I often wonder when I put an X on a ballot if there is any one who has it as a name. Is there any way you could find out and let me know, please? G.P.

A. Yes. A Kingston man had his name changed from Scott Percy Foster to X in 1972.

Subsidy Signs Changed

The controversial signs which remind B.C. Ferry passengers how much their trip is subsidized by the government are coming down but new ones are going up.

Highways Minister Alex Fraser said today his ministry has received a great deal of criticism about the notices.

They will be replaced by notices that will give extensive information about the fleet.

Fraser said the service is a good one and should be something to boast about.

He didn't expand on what information would be on the signs but did say the subsidy figures would be included among the information.

Fraser also rapped the service Pacific Western Airlines gives B.C. since it was purchased by the Alberta government and the headquarters moved from Vancouver to Calgary.

He has written the Canadian Transport Commission objecting to PWA's application for non-stop flights between Vancouver and Calgary and Edmonton.

"Prior to any extension of services by PWA, an effort should be made by the company to upgrade the service offered on present flights in B.C."

Craigflower Rehab Foe Now Backer

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

One of the main opponents of a Fish and Wildlife branch proposal to rehabilitate Craigflower Creek said today he's ready to support the project.

Ald. Murray Glazier of Victoria said he met Tuesday with Chris Dodd, head of the branch's urban recreation division, and is now prepared to actively support the plan providing two conditions are met.

Glazier said he's asked the branch for assurances that provincial land to the west of Thetis Lake park won't be developed in such a way that it provides a pollution threat to the lake and Craigflower Creek.

He also wants to be assured that the additional storage of water in Thetis Lake, which is the main issue in the proposal, won't damage the lake's shoreline ecology.

"If those two things sort themselves out I can support it with enthusiasm," said Glazier.

He said he believes the water storage question is all but resolved because the branch has agreed to compromise on its original request, and is now prepared to hold back less water.

"At first they wanted enough storage to be able to release it steadily from the spring through the fall, but now they will only discharge it on dry days, which calls for a lot less storage."

Glazier said the matter of the land to the west could be simpy resolved — if the province would just add it on to Thetis Lake Park.

The branch is proposing to improve a number of small dams and spillways at Thetis Lake to provide better water storage. The fish and wildlife officials want to see a more controlled release of water into Craigflower Creek so that young salmon and trout can survive the dry summer months in the tiny waterway.

The branch is engaged in a major cutthroat trout rehabilitation project in the Gorge, and increased runs of spawning fish are expected to head for the Craigflower in the future.

If the Thetis Lake project doesn't go ahead, biologists have warned, success of the over-all Gorge project could be cut by one-third — or about 17,000 trout.

Without sufficient water flow the young fish cannot survive the summer.

Emergency Huddle On Herring Hassle

Top department of fisheries officials called an emergency meeting in Vancouver today after strong protests greeted a federal edict given the roe herring fishery.

The regulation, if passed, would restrict gillnetters to one net of 75 fathoms. Up until now gillnetters have been able to use two nets for a total of 150 fathoms.

At the meeting today were Bob Humphreys of the herring resource board, director-general Dr. Wally Johnson and Ron McLeod, director of field services.

Fisheries official Lloyd Webb said the meeting was called as a result of outcries from fishermen and net suppliers.

They are discussing the possibility of having the change dropped or postponed until 1980. The roe herring season opens early in March.

Webb said the proposal to go to one net per punt was made so policing could be done more effectively, and also to slow down the fishery.

Bill Procopation of Vancouver, business agent for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said fishermen are angry because they were not officially told — or consulted — about the change although, through representative on the Herring Advisory Committee, they had made recommendations that had been ignored.

He and Scotty Neish, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria local, said such arbitrary decisions and failure to listen to the fishermen is resulting in people in the industry being forced to apply public pressure, through such things as protest marches.

Procopation said adequate policing could be done by employing more people on patrol vessels, and the fishery could be slowed by not permitting weekend fishing as was done in 1978.

LEGAL OPINION AIRED TONIGHT

A legal opinion on Education Minister Pat McGeer's order to change appointments to Camosun College council was received by the Greater Victoria School District this morning.

Board chairman Carol Pickup refused comment on it until she has a chance to talk to administrators.

The controversial issue will be on tonight's school board meeting agenda, she said. (See also page 45.)

"I hope it will be resolved by tonight — the board has too many other things to do," she said.

She questioned the legality of the move which invalidated appointments of non-trustee Beryl Young and former trustee Dr. Hal Knight.

The Believers, Bless 'Em, Shout It Out Loud, Clear

max low

Follow-up time again and there's nothing else for it — I'll just have to get that tongue out of my cheek while I type and be more of a believer.

That's the message I received loud and clear this week, several times actually, and in connection with two columns I wrote.

Quite a few readers phoned after my piece on inventor James Freeman Batt and his Freeman Energy Disc to inquire how they can contact Sunshine Jim. Well here it is: write care of P.O. Box 1904, Victoria V8W 2Y3.

Some of the callers, too, wanted to get the point across that they had at least some belief in the mystical energy powers of Mr. Batt's disc and that, obviously, I hadn't.

A woman who said she worked "aboard one of the weatherships" was very interested and told of a workmate who bought a Freeman Energy Disc at the Jaycee Fair and now has the most remarkable house plants.

It seems to have worked wonders on the plants, the woman said, and maybe on the man's hair, too.

"Well he uses water charged by the disc instead of a shampoo and he has the loveliest head of hair," the woman said. "It's always clean and healthy looking."

Don't quite know why but that reminds me of when I first went to live in Tehran and, bothered by my rapidly-receding hairline, was told by some Iranians that an old Persian herb called rang would help restore a lovely bushy growth on top.

So I soaked the herbs in water and in turn soaked my hair. It never did make the slightest difference to the thickness, of course, but I turned up for work at the newspaper office the next day, much to the delight of the Iranians, with hair that was a not-too-delicate shade of purple! And I had to learn to live with purple hair until it grew out.

Anyway, the woman said the man on the weathership is "a very logical young person, not way out at all," and not only uses his Freeman Energy Disc for bigger plants and cleaner hair but also insists "it does a fantastic job on cars."

It must have something, suggested the woman. And where can you buy it? Haven't the slightest idea, though I understand it is sold in several local stores. I suggest you write to Sunshine Jim at his box number. I do recall him telling me, however, that you can't get it anywhere but here.

Only in Victoria, eh? Pity . . .

Another man with whom readers feel I've been somewhat doubting is John Kehoe and his Mind Dynamics courses. Several have phoned lately to ask about him.

Well, he certainly isn't "only in Victoria." In fact, he has just left for a year of travels during which he will take the word of Mind Dynamics to all the major cities in Canada and the United States. When he returns, John may set up a permanent Mind Dynamics centre here.

He was flushed with success when he went after putting more than 250 people in Victoria and Vancouver through his courses that stress using the power of the mind to change lives and lifestyles.

He left clutching a thick sheaf of papers containing comments of those who took the courses and there wasn't a negative remark among them.

Most said the course was "extremely valuable" to them and others called it "very informative" and "life-changing."

"A very rewarding time for me," one man said. "I know there will be a big change in my life."

But how's this one for being positive:

"Thanks for everything," a woman wrote after taking the course. "I am off to a great start. I know things are working and are moving forward . . . and will continue to do so."

And a final follow-up footnote: I may be off Victoria's official list of Scrooges by the time next Christmas rolls around. The big New York-based company is apparently swallowing its pride after the column I wrote and Ice Capades, I hear, is coming back!

Fisherman's Body Found

Police today identified a body found earlier this week as that of Victoria fisherman Ken Larsen who disappeared a month ago.

His body was discovered on the bottom near the spot where his 32-foot fishboat, the Lanita, was moored at Fisherman's Wharf on Dec. 28, the day he apparently slipped and went into the water.

No foul play is suspected, say Victoria police.

Detective-Inspector Angus Stewart said Larsen's body was recovered after another fisherman at the wharf reported seeing a body surface and then sink.

Police divers had already scoured the area soon after he went missing, but had come up empty-handed.

Larsen, 30, was last seen alive on Dec. 28. Two days later the door to the Lanita's cabin, where he lived, was found open and the heat still on.

His belongings were in the cabin and his car was in the wharf parking lot.

For weeks police and the Larsen family thought that he still might turn up.

Today Larsen's father, Knut, said he had never given up hope and didn't intend to even now.

"His entity is still alive," he said.

TANTALIZINGLY CLOSE but no goal was this third-period action in Tuesday's Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. Victoria defenceman Mark Robinson (behind net), who had scored twice earlier, thought he scored but referee ruled puck never completely crossed goal-line. Portland goaltender Bart Hunter (1) watched helplessly but forward Joel Elliott (7) saved day by sweeping puck to safety. Play helped Portland score 6-4 victory. (Times photo by John McKay).

HAWKS BOOST WINNING STREAK

Injuries Draining Cats

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Victoria's 6-4 loss to Portland Winter Hawks in Tuesday's Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena didn't go over too well with Cougar coach Jack Shupe, but that was the least of his troubles.

Injuries continued to plague the Cougars, who lost the services of three more players due to mishaps during the game.

This left the Cougars with only 12 skaters heading into tonight's return match with the Hawks in Portland.

Shupe's most immediate concern was to find someone . . . anyone . . . able or willing to play defence.

The number of healthy Victoria defenceman is down to two.

Tony Feltrin, a 17-year-old rookie, and Mark Robinson, still not A-1 but getting there after missing more than two months of action with a knee injury, were the only regulars who could be confirmed as starters tonight.

"I've never experienced a season like this one for injuries," moaned Shupe when he discovered that rookie Robert Jacobson and veteran Todd Morton won't be playing tonight. Scott Lang, Victoria's other blueline regular, remains on the sideline with a back injury suffered Jan. 14.

Jacobson suffered a wrist injury in the second period and Morton picked up a knee injury, also in the second period, that he refused to disclose until after the game. He finished out the game but was limping noticeably.

In addition, Shupe will miss the services of wingers Bob Smith, who suffered a knee injury during the third period, and George Fritz, who is out of action for the second time this season and for at least 10 to 14 more days with a knee injury.

Robinson and centre Geordie Robertson also have been sidelined for lengthy periods this season.

Cougars are flying two players from Nanaimo Clippers — 17-year-old defenceman Ryan McAdam and winger Dave Wheeldon — to Portland for tonight's game.

The club had already called up 16-year-old Len Dawes from their B.C. Junior League affiliate. The six-foot-three youngster started nervously but played better as the game progressed and will accompany the Cougars to Portland.

Each affiliated player is allowed three games before losing eligibility in the tier two ranks.

Cougars also have to play in Seattle on Friday and then return to meet the Winter Hawks here again Saturday.

Victoria's injury problems far outshadowed the on-ice loss.

Cougars held a 3-1 lead midway through the game, then collapsed because of glaring defensive mistakes. Even so, the result flattered the West Division-leading Hawks.

For that, they had to thank goaltender Bart Hunter and some erratic Victoria shooting. It was a game in which Cougars mounted numerous excellent scoring chances but were frustrated either by Hunter or their own off-the-target shooting.

"I thought it could have easily been 6-1 in Victoria's favor after the first period," admitted Portland manager Brian Shaw. "Hunter stole this one for us. He kept us in it and gave us a chance (to come back)."

Hawk coach Ken Hodge's first comment was: "This is getting to be our building."

Portland now has won three, tied one and lost but once in five visits here.

Victory stretched Portland's undefeated record on the road to seven games — five victories and two ties.

ICE CHIPS: Robinson scored twice for the Cougars and missed a possible third one when his shot stopped on the goal line and was eventually cleared away by a Portland defender . . . The referee's no-goal ruling was disputed by Cougars . . . One-time Cougar Al Szott scored twice for Portland . . . Each team scored two power-play goals but Victoria's extra-man attack was generally ineffective because the reluctance of Cougar point-men to shoot on the net . . . Robinson's second goal was from the point, and it may have been the only one from the points in the whole game.

In other action Tuesday, New Westminster beat Billings Bighorns 6-3 and Brandon Wheat Kings edged Saskatoon Blades, 3-2.

Habs Stagger Home

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Even before the shot that robbed him of a chance to record his 46th career shutout, Montreal Canadiens goalie Ken Dryden sighted trouble.

"We had plenty of opportunities to pass it out over the blue line," Dryden said of a puck that eventually ended up behind him in the National Hockey League game Tuesday night.

"That was only the last mistake," Dryden said of his failure to stop a shot from close range by the St. Louis Blues' Bob Murdoch. "There were plenty of mistakes to go with it."

Dryden's comments and a wobbly third period tempered a 6-3 Canadiens victory and left coach Scotty Bowman pondering the defending Stanley Cup champion's lapses. It was the only NHL game.

"We lost (Bill) Nyrop and (Pierre) Bouchard, and we haven't been able to recover since," Bowman reflected. "But we've had some guys injured. We're probably going to have to put (Bob) Gainey back on defence."

Gainey, the Canadiens' best checking left winger, was shifted to a blueline position for the first time in his pro career as Montreal skated to a 6-0 command in the opening 27 minutes.

The Canadiens, before their letdown, capitalized on Mario Tremblay's forechecking to set up a goal by Rejean Houle and made it 2-0 in the opening period on Guy Lafleur's wrist shot.

Larry Robinson and Lafleur intercepted passes to set up goals by Tremblay and Pierre Mondou, Pat Hughes slapped in his own rebound and a backhander by Houle helped establish the 6-0 cushion.

"When we start to back up and not go forward and not forecheck, we have some problems," Houle acknowledged of Montreal's final 20 minutes.

Petch Quartet Close To B.C. Playoff Berth

Petch now meets Ruth Hudson of Courtenay in one "B" semi-finals while Jameson goes against Flora Martin, also of Victoria Club, in the other.

The winners will meet in the "B" final this afternoon and if Petch is defeated then there will be a deciding game for the championship.

The B.C. title event will be held in Prince Rupert, Feb. 12-17, and the Canadian championhip at Vernon, March 17-23.

Williams Steals Victory For Sonics

By The Associated Press

Gus Williams stole everything but the towels as he sparked the Seattle Supersonics to their fifth consecutive road victory.

Williams came up with nine steals — including the decisive one — in addition to his game-high 24 points to lead the Supersonics to a 103-100 victory over Washington Bullets in National Basketball Association action Tuesday night.

"We know what the Bullets are going to do and we were just determined to play tough defence," the four-year veteran said. "We tried to make every pass tough for them."

Coach Lenny Wilkens credited the defence for his team's second victory in two tries over their rivals in the NBA finals last season.

"We take a lot of pride in our defence," Wilkens said. "We did a lot of double teaming and helping out at the end, and that was the difference."

The Bullets made only six of 19 shots in the fourth quarter and committed eight turnovers that led to 14 points by Seattle. The 16 points scored by Washington was its lowest fourth quarter output of the season.

"You can't expect to win when you throw the ball away that much," said coach Dick Motta of the Bullets. "We got a big lead (66-49 in the third quarter) and then got careless."

In other games, Indiana beat Atlanta 110-107, Cleveland edged Denver 108-108, New Orleans defeated Kansas City 118-116, Chicago downed Boston 100-90 and Los Angeles routed New York 148-124.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors opened defence of his title in the $250,000 United States pro indoor tennis championship Tuesday night by defeating Van Winsky 6-4, 6-3.

Ilie Nastase of Romania, the 12th seed, defeated Deon Joubert of South Africa 6-4, 6-4 in another first-round match.

SENATE TO PROBE OFF-TRACK BETTING

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday the Senate will be asked to study off-track betting on horse races and no decision on legalizing it will be made until the Senate reports.

Whelan told reporters that Senator Ray Perreault, government leader in the Senate, would seek agreement in the Upper House to examine the off-track betting.

"Personally I don't think all the questions about off-track betting have been answered," Whelan said. The public needed to know where the money from wagering will go and who will benefit.

Whelan wouldn't say whether he supported an attempt by major track operators to have the Criminal Code amended to legalize off-track betting. Currently betting is allowed only at race tracks.

Last month the minister told a special meeting here of all segments of the industry that he would have a decision by the time the Commons resumed sitting whether to approve betting. However, he has left the impression he is fundamentally against the system.

After a meeting with members of the Liberal caucus, Whelan said that even if there is enough support for off-track betting, it is unlikely he could get the law changed before the Commons dissolves for the general election expected by July.

Strong Field For Oakleaf Hoop Classic

Eight teams from across Canada will be competing in the third annual Oakleaf high school boys' basketball tournament which gets underway Friday at both Oak Bay High School and University of Victoria's McKinnon Gym.

In addition to the host Oak Bay Bays, the entrants are defending-champion Nanaimo Islanders, Lockerby of Sudbury, Ont., Brookfield of Ottawa, Viscount Bennett of Calgary, Vancouver City College, Richmond Colts and Mt. Douglas Rams.

Bays are a young but very competitive squad anchored by Wayne Andrews and John Hewer. In league play, Bays are now 4-0 and coach Dave Morgan says the squad is improving every game.

Lockerby, which boasts the services of five-foot-eleven guard and Junior Olympic team starter Illario Pasguale, is one of the highest-ranking teams in Canada and is likely to provide one of the strongest challenges to Nanaimo's bid to retain the title.

Play opens Friday at 3 p.m. and continues Saturday at the same time at Oak Bay High School.

Action shifts to McKinnon Gym on Sunday starting at 9 a.m. with the final scheduled for 3 p.m.

Meanwhile, Bays, Islanders and Rams all tuned up for the tourney with victories Tuesday.

Andrews fired 31 points to lead Bays to an 89-47 win over Spectrum while Rams tripped Reynolds Roadrunners 70-37 in Greater Victoria Boys' League play and Islanders topped Cowichan Thunderbirds 86-73 in a North Island League game.

In other Greater Victoria games, Derrick Peters sank 32 points to lead Stelly's Stingers to a 71-57 triumph over Claremont Spartans, Belmont Braves slammed Esquimalt Dockers 79-49 and Victoria Totems edged Dunsmuir Demons, 83-71.

Stelly's edged Belmont 42-40, Oak Bay topped Spectrum 40-37, Victoria Tigers defeated Dunsmuir 44-25 and Mt. Douglas Ramblers downed Reynolds Roadrunners 53-25 in Greater Victoria High School Girls' League games.

Friday's opening Oakleaf games:
3 p.m. — Lockerby vs. Richmond.
5 p.m. — Mt. Douglas vs. Vancouver City College.
7 p.m. — Nanaimo vs. Brookfield.
9 p.m. — Oak Bay vs. Viscount Bennett.

OLA Frees Pros

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Lacrosse Association will allow all former professional players to compete in lacrosse in Ontario this year for the first time since 1975.

Previously only five ex-pros were allowed on any one club.

"Since the folding of the professional league, all the players came back to the OLA, creating what we thought would be an imbalance," OLA president Charles Foster said Tuesday. "At the time we thought there should be a limitation.

"But now we feel the rule has done its job and we no longer need it."

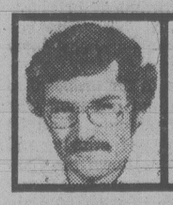
Fur-Buying Public Ignoring Critics



OUTDOORS
stewart lang

Wrong.

Fur is making a big comeback in the fashion world — so obviously the message being preached by some of the more radical environmental groups isn't accepted by the general public.

In addition, it tends to reduce the credibility of environmental groups as a whole when there are many more worthwhile causes.

Sales of furs — with wild fur outstripping ranch-raised furs at a ratio of about two to one — have boomed in the past three years, increasing to an all-time high of around $725 million in the United States during 1978.

At a recent fur auction in Ontario, their second of the season, final sales exceeded forcasts by $1 million, netting more than $6 million for the Ontario Trappers' Association.

About 100 buyers from around the world attended the auction, which had $3.3 million in sales at this time last year. The first auction this season also collected $3.3 million.

Association manager Alex Shieff, said the bonanza resulted from two factors — extremely strong fur prices and a complete sellout.

He said about 250,000 skins were sold during the two-day sale.

Raccoon sold at a high of $110 and $39.40 average; otter $180 and $104.20; wolf $360 and $93.88; red fox $172 and $94.14; silver fox $370 high and $164.04; bear $220 and $72.22.

It's now about midway through the British Columbia trapping season (Oct. 15 to May 24) and Joe Carty of Prince George, president of the B.C. Trappers' Association, expects a bonanza.

"This is the most significant increase we've had in any season," he said.

Carty explained that the prices trappers are getting are ranging from 30 to 100 per cent over what they collected last season.

Obviously this is an indication the message being preached by some almost-professional organizations isn't affecting the mood of the people.

And, in the final analysis, it's refreshing.

Particularly in B.C., trapping regulations ensure that killing is as humane as possible — far more humane, say, than the death by starvation, desease or parasites often meted out by Mother Nature.

Opponents of trapping are the same ilk as those who actively oppose hunting. Most are from urban areas, far removed from the blood and guts reality that sustains their own mode of living.

In addition, a great many are nearly rabid in their sanctimonious dismisal of what is to their minds an alien lifestyle.

Wildlife, like our forests, is a renewable resource. If managed properly, it can be sustained forever — both for consumptive and non-consumptive users.

Approximately 5,500 people — for the most part natives — trapped throughout this province in the 1977-78 season and sales of wild fur generated a revenue of over $2.1 million to the rural economy.

Most, if not all, of the "cruelty" associated with leg-hold traps can be traced to human error or inexperience. Sure, there is room for improvement. But the present regulations laid down by the provincial fish and wildlife branch are the most stringent in Canada and the Federal-Provincial Committee for Humane Trapping is working on solving specific problems.

In parting, one final thought.

Many members of the anti-trapping fraternity suggest the use of synthetic furs to replace the ones now being taken from animals.

But, if one considers that synthetics are derived from the petrochemical industry, their use has the potential for doing far more harm to wildlife in the long run than any possible amount of trapping.

Varcoe Sparks Braves' Victory

Phil Varcoe scored three goals and Ed Beauchemin and Wayne Larsen fired two each Tuesday night as Saanich Braves whalloped Juan de Fuca Gulls 12-0 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game.

Tracy Patterson, Steve Craig, Murray McLaren, Scott Connors and Ron Jobson also scored for Braves, who expanded their lead to four points over Fuller Lake Flyers in the Patterson Division.

Marty Wakelyn only had to block 23 shots on the Saanich net to record the shutout while Peter Adamek of Juan de Fuca had to make 61 saves.

Mays Admits Greatness

NEW YORK (AP) — "If" is a word that Willie Mays said he disdains.

But when pressed about what he thought he would be worth on today's baseball market if he were 30 years old and a free agent, the newest member of the Hall of Fame said Tuesday, "I could make $8 million."

Or maybe $10 million, says Monte Irvin, Mays' former team-mate in the black leagues and with New York Giants.

"On today's market, he would be worth $10 million easily," Irvin said, adding that the day of the $1-million-per-season player was not far off. The highest paid player currently in the majors is Pete Rose, who recently signed an $800,000-per-year contract with Philadelphia Phillies.

Mays, however, had no reservations about his abilities, discussing them freely after being only the ninth player voted into the baseball shrine in his first year of eligibility, exclusive of those inducted during the initial balloting in 1936.

Babe Ruth and Honus Wagner, each with 95.1 per cent of the vote, were the only others to receive a higher percentage than the fun-loving, happy-go-lucky Mays, who spent 22 mostly glorious years with the Giants and New York Mets, for whom he now coaches.

"I always knew I would be in the Hall of Fame," Mays said bluntly and without any hesitation.

"I thought I was the best baseball player I ever saw," continued the 47-year-old Mays, now also firmly entrenched in the business world. "Nobody in the world could do what I could do.

"I hope I'm not saying anything wrong," he continued. "If you play ball, you have to believe you are the best."

Mays might get some argument about being the best, but there is no questioning that he was one of the best.

His Hall of Fame credentials are impeccable—606 home runs, third highest total in baseball history; four-time National League home run champion; a .302 career batting average; a two-time Most Valuable Player award winner; National League Rookie of the Year in 1951; a powerful and accurate throwing arm, and daring on the bases that frightened and harrassed the opposition.

Snider 'Disappointed'

FALLBROOK, Calif. (AP) — "It wouldn't be normal if you didn't feel disappointed," said Duke Snider. "It's everybody's dream to be in the Hall of Fame.

Snider, star outfielder of the old Brooklyn Dodgers, fell 16 votes short of the required votes while finishing second in the balloting. Willie Mays, former New York and San Francisco Giants star, was the only player voted to the Hall today.

"Willie really more or less deserves to be in by himself, the great player he was," added Snider, who has an avocado ranch here. Snider fell 31 votes short in last year Hall of Fame voting.

"I really feel for Enos (Slaughter) because he was a fantastic player," Snider said in reference by to the onetime St. Louis Cardinals star who finished third in the voting. "It was his last chance, for five more years anyway."

Snider said he is hopeful his time will come.

"You can't go out and play; waiting is all you can do," he said.

Slaughter Down To One Chance

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — Former outfielder Enos Slaughter, passed over in the voting for baseball's Hall of Fame, said Tuesday he "won't lose any sleep over it."

"It seems like in order to make the Hall of Fame, you've got to hit home runs," said the 63-year-old Slaughter, who played in five World Series — two with St. Louis Cardinals and three with New York Yankees.

Last year, Slaughter finished second behind third baseman Eddie Mathews. He said he agreed with this year's inductee, Willie Mays.

"I had strong hopes but believe me, I didn't lose any sleep over it and I won't lose any now."

Slaughter, with a career batting average of better than .300, only has one chance remaining to enter the Hall of Fame, whose inductees are voted upon by the Baseball Writers Association of American. He can be inducted by a vote of the veteran's committee five years from now.

NFL FRANCHISE MOOTED FOR MONTREAL

Drapeau: Will He Strike Again?

MONTREAL (CP) — Is Mayor Jean Drapeau dreaming in technicolor, or can he really find a way to circumvent obvious obstacles and help bring a National Football League franchise to Montreal?

The question has been debated hotly ever since Drapeau flew to Miami for the Super Bowl on Sunday, declaring he would like to see an NFL team here by 1982, when the Olympic Stadium roof is scheduled to be in place.

Drapeau did not return calls Tuesday, but the absence of any reiteration from him failed to dull the controversy.

The first question, of course, is whether the NFL is likely to expand at all. Commissioner Pete Rozelle was en route to Los Angeles for the Pro Bowl, but his New York office said by telephone: "You people shouldn't get so excited over this. We're not actively considering expansion to Canada or anywhere else."

Rozelle said last week in Miami that he foresaw the NFL with 30 teams, only two more than the current number, by the year 2000.

Such cities as Birmingham, Indianapolis, Phoenix and Honolulu have been prominently mentioned as potential entries, while the imminent move of Los Angeles Rams to Anaheim could mean a new club on the West Coast. And the New York City area might add a third team to the Giants-Jets duo.

The NFL's three-man expansion committee will at least discuss the matter at an owners' meeting March 10 in Honolulu. Art Rooney Jr. of Pittsburgh Steelers, a member of the committee, is reported to be friendly toward the idea of Montreal as an expansion site.

Rozelle has often said that the NFL will not place a team in Canada over the objections of the Canadian Football League.

Meanwhile, the argument raged about whether Drapeau intends to campaign seriously for an NFL team or whether he is simply going through the motions, for whatever reason.

Opinions ranged from stark skepticism to the belief that he actually can add a big-league football team to other prizes such as Expo 67, the Expos National League baseball team and the 1976 Summer Olympic Games.

The nebulous nature of the campaign, however, hasn't daunted its supporters. Two daily newspapers have already asked readers for suggestions for names for the team.

NFL Stay Home

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Football League likely has the sense not to try to expand into Canada, government officials said Tuesday, but they refused any direct comment on Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau's bid for an NFL franchise for the Olympic Stadium.

A spokesman for Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo said she doesn't want to comment on news reports about the Drapeau bid. The minister wants to see if the NFL is even interested.

Steve Paproski, a former player in the Canadian Football League and now a senior opposition member of Parliament for Edmonton Centre, says it's unlikely his party would want to see the NFL move in and the CFL die.

When Marc Lalonde, then the health minister, announced in 1974 the government would bring in legislation to block Toronto Northmen of the World Football League, he said "the future of Canadian football is too large and too important a question to be left to a few entrepreneurs out for a fast buck."

Lalonde now is the justice minister. His bill received approval by the Commons with Paproski only one of two Conservatives to support it. It later died when the Commons was adjourned for a general election.

Bland Eliminated

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — All eight Canadians, including Jennifer Bland of Victoria, were eliminated Tuesday in pre-qualifying for a $25,000 women's tennis tournament next week.

Four semi-finalists from the pre-qualifying tournament advance to the qualifying competition. Four semi-finalists from qualifying will qualify for the main tournament, scheduled to begin at the Cobblestone Courts on Monday.

Beatrix Klein of East Hanover, N.J., defeated Bland 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 while 14-year-old Stacy Hurley of Georgetown, Ont., lost 5-7, 6-1, 6-4 to Eri Mureta of Japan.

Skillings Leads By One

Skillings (10-3) defeated Ted Jurista (5-8) 6-3, while Harvey (9-4) won over Al Frame (4-9) 7-6.

In other games Don Edl (5-8) defeated Don Matheson (5-8) 9-6 and Bob Hawkes (7-6) defeated Brad Clarke (7-6) 5-3.

Softball Meeting

Annual general meeting of the Cosmopolitan Gordon Head Girls Little League will be held Monday, starting at 7:30 p.m., in the Barn at Lambrick Park. The softball program caters to girls between eight and 15 years of age.

Weather Belts Soccer; Teams Face Backlogs

Most clubs face huge game backlogs that will mean playing extra midweek matches until the end of the season, and the situation gets worse every day.

All Tuesday night's games, including the second leg of the Watford vs. Nottingham Forest League Cup semi-final, were postponed and, with snow falling over the whole country, prospects for Saturday look grim.

For Wrexham of the Second Division, the makeup problem has become critical. Wrexham's third-round English Cup tie with Stockport has already been postponed five times because of the weather and if it does not take place later this week, the fourth-round tie between the winners and Tottenham will also have to be postponed.

Wrexham is also five league games behind schedule and is involved in the Welsh Cup, the club's only passport to European competition.

First Division clubs like Norwich City, Aston Villa and Nottingham Forest are also four league matches in arrears, and in Forest's case the backlog is even more critical because the club is also involved in the League Cup and the European Cup of Champions.

The English League fixture backlog is now nearly 250 matches, but the authorities maintain there is no need for the clubs to panic.

"I cannot see any emergency meeting being called at the moment," a spokesman said Tuesday.

THE OLDTIMERS' TOURNAMENT:

Where They're From; Where They're At

The Western Canada Hockey Oldtimers' tournament, with 68 teams and an estimated 1,400 players overtaxing Victoria's downtown accomodations, is an affair guaranteed to keep a committee of over 300 busy.

But friends and acquaintances looking for familiar faces among the many teams are adding to the committee's work-load.

The main question being asked is: "Where are they staying?"

The three-day tournament gets under way Friday with preliminary games being played at all seven Greater Victoria ice rinks. The Racquet Club, North Saanich's Panorama Leisure Centre, Esquimalt Sports Centre and the arenas Pearks, Memorial, Juan de Fuca and Oak Bay is where the action will be, starting at 11 a.m.

To ease the pressure of inquiries at tournament headquarters (385-2405), the complete list of entries is printed below, showing (in brackets) where each team is staying.

The majority of teams are scheduled to arrive Thursday but some also are due to pull in early Friday.

City Skaters Picked

COURTENAY — Seven skaters from Victoria are included in the 10-member team representing Vancouver Island at the B.C. Winter Games in Kamloops, March 1-4.

Victorians qualifying after a skateoff here at the weekend were Susie Hetherington and Meredith Barry (senior girls), Sherri Middleton and Jennifer Chant (intermediate girls), Kurt Nelson and David Turgeon (juvenile boys) and Andrea Gardner (juvenile girls).

Other members of the team were Tibuen Aranas and Darryl Clark of Courtenay (intermediate boys) and Patricia Villaneuve of Comox (juvenile girls).

Butlin Rejects NHL Bid

Ron Butlin, chairman of the British Columbia Games, has turned down an offer to be vice-president and general manager of an unnamed National Hockey League club.

"I came to British Columbia with a committment of at least five years to help bring about a massive participation program of the citizens of this province," explained Butlin.

"This program is now jst getting well underway and I have no intention of reneging on my undertaking. Contracts work both ways — I expect the government to fullfill their agreement with me and I in turn have a similar responsibility to them. There are just too many people in sport today who feel contracts are one-sided."

That's right! The boss is away, and if we don't sell a bunch of these KENWOOD amplifiers before he gets back. . . we'll get fired! Cauthen To Stay In West

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Slump-ridden jockey Steve Cauthen, who earlier announced he was leaving California to ride in the East, has changed his plans and will remain at Santa Anita for the balance of the 78-day meeting, it was announced Tuesday.

Cauthen, who hasn't been aboard a winner since Jan. 1, said Sunday that he was leaving Santa Anita but now he intends to resume riding at the track Thursday.

Cauthen's longtime agent, Lenny Goodman, who recommended that Cauthen return to the East, is going back to New York. Agent Chic McClellan has been named to handle Cauthen's book for the rest of the Santa Anita season.

Cauthen, the leading rider in the United States in 1977 and the jockey aboard Triple Crown champion Affirmed last year, hasn't reached the winner's circle in his last 80 mounts.

Keegan Gets Rich Contract Offer For Part-Time Play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kevin Keegan, 1978 European footballer-of-the-year, and Washington Diplomats have reached verbal agreement calling for Keegan to play for the Dips in the North American Soccer League the next three years for a figure in excess of $1 million.

The Washington Post said sources have indicated that the Dips and Keegan have verbally agreed on a figure that would pay Keegan more money than the entire Washington team was paid in 1978.

Keegan will sign a three-year agreement that will allow him to continue playing for Hamburg S.V. while playing about 70 per cent, or some 20 of 30 games, of the NASL season.

Elvises Crawl Out of Woodwork

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jimmy Angel from Memphis, Bob Guelfi from Petaluma, Calif., and more than 100 other young men with black hair and long sideburns showed up Tuesday to try out for the lead in an Elvis Presley film.

Some like Johnny Harra of Dallas, have become known for their gyrating portrayal of Presley's singing style.

But most were unknowns and, as Harra put it, "don't claim to be an Elvis double."

Their costumes were similar to the white jumpsuit and satin-lined cape for which Tony Grova of Oakland, N.J., paid $200 and got a tailor friend to add sequins, studs and gold buttons.

They said "sir" a lot and paid tribute to the Presley legend. "If I had my wish, I'd wish to lose the part and have Elvis back," said Johnny Steele, whose wife and child stay with his parents in Baltimore while, he says, "I just travel and do my music."

Some had their mothers along to coach. Said Bill Johnson of Owensville, Ind., "My mom and dad called from home this morning to tell me not to forget the audition."

Filming on The King of Rock 'n' Roll is slated to begin in April.

All aspirants for the leading roll paid their own way. Fred Hamilton, an excavation contractor, helped pay his brother Roger's air fare from Cleveland so Roger, a trucker, could try out.

An Ultimatum For Michelle

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Lee Marvin sent an ultimatum to singer Michelle Triola Marvin from Hawaii in 1966 telling her to join him there and give up her recording career, Miss Marvin testified Tuesday.

Miss Marvin, who lived with the Hollywood actor for six years, told a Los Angeles Superior Court she had asked Marvin whether she could spend time promoting a record she made in the United States.

In a letter sent to her from Hawaii, Marvin gave her the ultimatum, she told the court.

Asked by Marvin's lawyer, David Kagon, what the actor actually said, Miss Marvin replied: "He said 'Either get here by July 15 or forget the whole thing' " — an apparent reference to their relationship.

Miss Marvin, looking tired after being on the witness stand for five days, sobbed quietly and put her hands over her face when Kagon again questioned her about the three pregnancies she said she had while living with Marvin.

BILLY CATER CLAIMS ASSAULT BID

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter filed assault charges against a freelance writer Tuesday after a dispute with the man in nearby Plains, authorities reported.

Sumter County Sheriff Randy Howard said Pete Pekarsky was reported to have gone to Billy Carter's home in neighboring Marion County and "had words" with Billy's wife Sybil.

The writer then went to Billy's service station in Plains, where the dispute arose, he said. Billy claimed that Pekarsky attempted to hit him with a metal rod, the sheriff said.

His First Sight of U.S. a Dazzler

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Daniel Kelly, who has spent most of his life in Chinese labor camps was dazzled by his first sight of the motherland he knew only through books.

"I never thought it would be like this," Kelly said Tuesday.

"It's wonderful, fascinating. It's what I always was dreaming for. This is what I fought for."

Kelly, 38, spent 21 years in mainland Chinese labor camps. His crimes: refusal to renounce his U.S. citizenship and an escape attempt.

Kelly was born in China, the son of a U.S. Presbyterian minister who married a Chinese woman. His only knowledge of the United States had been through books — old ones.

His father died in 1957. Kelly tried a year later to escape China by swimming to the island of Macao, but was caught and sentenced to forced labor.

Kelly, his mother, his wife and three children were allowed to leave China for Hong Kong last month.

They boarded a plane Tuesday and flew to the United States, landing first in Seattle and then flying on to Indianopolis where Kelly and his sister, Elizabeth Peabody, were reunited for the first time in 30 years.

"Since I was a boy, I dreamed of going home to America," he told reporters in Seattle. "I knew that I was an American. I didn't feel Chinese. I think in English, and when I was alone, I talked to myself in English. I stuck to my guns."

Kelly had to pay lip service, ultimately, to the Chinese demands.

"I had to sign the forms as a Chinese — the Chinese passport," he said. He said he signed as Lin Hsiao Shu, his Mandarin name.

Asked what he hopes to do in the United States, Kelly said that his years of manual labor on Chinese farms hadn't prepared him for any profession or trade.

BIG LEAGUE production of The Hobbit is being staged by Reynolds school theatre students tonight and Thursday at 8 p.m. Production involves more than 100 actors and stage hands and, as picture shows, some pretty professional costumes and props. Play also features Reynolds school band and is directed by Tony Burton with assistant student director Lynn Simonson. Admission is $3 for adults and $1.50 each for students and children.

High Cost Of Loving

BARNSTABLE, Mass. — Pulitzer Prize winning author Norman Mailer contends he cannot afford to meet the financial demands of his fourth wife because he is saddled with weekly payments totalling $1,000 to two of his mistresses. Mailer told a Barnstable Probate Court judge Tuesday the weekly stipends — coupled with support payments for eight of his nine children — have left him broke. "I am deeply in debt," said Mailer, who testified for five hours at his divorce trial. Beverly Bentley Mailer, the author's fourth wife whom he married in 1963, is suing Mailer for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. The couple has been separated for several years. Mrs. Mailer is seeking $52,000 a year, the deed to the couple's house in Provincetown on Cape Cod, an apartment in New York City, and custody of their two teenage sons. Mailer testified he pays his current mistress, Norris Church, $600 each week as a "social secretary and troubleshooter." He pays Carol Stevens, a jazz singer with whom he lived for several years, $400 a week as "musical director" for a movie he hopes to make, he said. Under questioning by his attorney, Mailer said he has always freely engaged in extra-marital affairs.

ROME — Sophia Loren's husband, film producer Carlo Ponti, is threatened with seizure of $24 million of his Italian property for transferring $11 million out of the country illegally. Ponti, 66, was convicted in absentia Tuesday by a Rome court, fined $24 million and ordered to serve a two-year prison term. The court acquitted Miss Loren of charges that she was an accomplice in the currency violations and tried to smuggle $3.5 million worth of art works abroad. A warrant for Ponti's arrest remained in effect, but there was no expectation that he would ever go to prison. He and and his 44-year-old wife have become French citizens, and France does not extradite its citizens. But the government earlier placed a lien against his property in Italy, which is reported to be worth more than $40 million. The Rome court also acquitted actors Richard Harris and Kenneth Ross and actress Ava Gardner of violating currency regulations by getting paid abroad for work in Ponti films made in Italy.

NEW YORK — The Times says Pope John Paul II has made tentative plans to visit New York City next fall for a session of the United Nations. Quoting Robert Wagner, special United States envoy to the Vatican, the paper says the Pope discussed plans for the visit with Wagner at a diplomatic reception in Rome more than a week ago. The Vatican had no comment and its permanent observer to the United Nations, Archbishop Giovanni Cheli, said he has not been informed of the trip.

DURBAN — Gertrude Khwela gave birth to sextuplets today but three of them died, a hospital spokesman said. The four girls and two boys were delivered at a mission hospital near Creighton, west of this South African city. Mrs. Khwela, who had not been taking fertility drugs, already has two children, aged 5 and 7.

LOS ANGELES — It is still not known when John Wayne will go home, but doctors at UCLA Medical Centre say the 71-year-old actor is progressing satisfactorily in his recovery from cancer surgery earlier this month. "His vital signs are good, his condition is stable and his progress is satisfactory," a hospital spokesman said Tuesday. "He is up and walking around in the hall somewhat and he is eating some soft foods."

HOLLYWOOD — John Travolta has withdrawn from his starring role in the movie American Gigolo because of the recent death of his mother and the illness of his father. "It is with deep regret that John Travolta will not be able to start in American Gigolo," said Michael Eisner, president of Paramount Pictures. "Because of the recent death of his mother and the current illness of his father, we understand that his first obligation is to his family."

JAGGER'S THE FATHER, COURT SAYS

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Mick Jagger has been declared the father of an eight-year-old girl born to actress Marsha Hunt and a final child support agreement has been reached, lawyers for Jagger and Miss Hunt said Tuesday.

The child, Karis, was born in London on Nov. 4, 1970. In a suit filed last July, Miss Hunt, 31, had asked Jagger to pay child support of $2,290 a month.

"The suit was filed because Jagger, without admitting paternity, had been paying only a modest monthly sum for the child's support during the past four years," Mitchelson said.

SAUSAGE AND BEAN CASSEROLE

In a skillet, saute 8 slices bacon, diced in 1 inch pieces and 1 lb. sausages, cut in 1 inch pieces until cooked. In 1½ tbsp. reserved drippings, saute ⅔ cup thinly sliced celery, 1 large chopped onion, and 1 small chopped green pepper until tender but not browned. In large casserole dish combine 1 28 oz. can baked beans, 2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce, 1 clove crushed garlic, ½ tsp. dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste. Stir to combine. Add cooked bacon, sausages, celery, onion, green pepper and 1 large tomato, coarsely chopped. Combine well. Place in 375 degree F. oven, covered, for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove dish from oven, sprinkle with 1½ cups sharp cheddar cheese, grated; return to oven uncovered and cook 10 to 15 minutes longer or until cheese is melted and beans are piping hot. Makes 4 servings.

Before the Judge

A 32-year-old Saanich man charged after the seizure of 10 ounces of cocaine at Pat Bay Airport last Friday is free on $22,000 bail.

Kenneth McLeod, 1686 Lansdowne, was released by Judge Fred Green following a bail hearing Tuesday in provincial court.

McLeod was remanded until Jan. 30 for his election of trial method. He is charged with importing narcotics and possession of narcotics for trafficking.

Under bail terms McLeod must remain within the county of Victoria, surrender his passport and report to the bail supervisor as required.

A 25-year-old American awaiting deportation was back in court under the name of Peter Higgs seeking a jail sentence rather than a $50 fine levied Thursday for possession of marijuana.

Higgs appeared in court Friday as Charles Brown and pleaded guilty to breach of the Immigration Act. He was sentenced to 30 days by Judge Harold Alder.

Judge Green allowed him a five-day jail sentence on the marijuana charge that will be served concurrently.

A 26-year-old man was sentenced to 30 days after pleading guilty to breaking, entering and theft.

Alfred Dorion, no fixed address, on Nov. 10 broke into a Blanshard Street establishment by smashing a window. Police found him inside with a small amount of cash.

Dorion was granted bail Nov. 11 but was unable to raise it and had been in custody since.

Robert Hookway, 1144 Oscar, had tendered a forged prescription for 60 codeine tablets at a Fairfield Road drug store on Jan. 11. It was one of two he told police he bought for $10 at a downtown hotel.

He will be sentenced Feb. 23.

Judge Green wondered if he should make an 18-year-old Sooke man who pleaded guilty to committing an indecent act "stand with his backside to a mirror for a period of time."

Twice on July 8, Michael Burke had exposed his buttocks in view of Goldstream Avenue restaurant patrons.

As a co-accused had earlier received an absolute discharge, Green granted one to Burke.

"I hope that you're embarrassed. You should be," said the judge.

Fined for drinking-driving offences: Frederick Rostek, 19, of 204-1340 Sussex, $475; Robert McNabb, 37, of 985 Redfern, $100 and 50 hours community service work; James Douglas, 27, of Calgary, $300.

MYSTERY OF THE MONTH at SPCA is this pure-bred English Setter with a 1978 Calgary licence but no claimers. He was brought to the shelter a week ago by a woman who found him wandering. SPCA wonders why it has had no inquiries about such an aparently valuable dog. (John McKay photo).

Probation For Break-in

Brian Howard Powley, 26, was placed on 18 months probation Tuesday in county court for breaking into a Mayfair shop a year ago almost to the day.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart previously found Powley guilty of breaking and entering with intent to steal at Thrifty's The Place for Pants Jan. 25, 1978.

He suspended sentence after the Crown indicated it did not oppose suspension as requested by the defence, but said he was not satisfied about the reasons for the "serious and foolish offence."

The defence said alcohol and a medical instability were factors leading up to the break-in, but that rehabilitation was being helped by Powley's employment as a disco music jockey.

ESCAPER FOUND GUILTY

A Wilkinson Road jail inmate charged with escaping lawful custody in September, 1977, was found guilty Tuesday by a Victoria county court jury.

Judge Peter Millward sentenced Smith, 22, to four months in jail, to be served consecutively.

Smith is serving a five-year term in the B.C. Penitentiary.

Smith and another man went over a fence at the jail, and were shot at by a guard. Smith was wounded when struck on the back with shotgun pellets, and he was subsequently recaptured.

Especially for Pizza Clan

If pizza is a favorite at your house, then you'll be delighted to discover calzone.

Calzone has the same flavors as pizza, but it's made like a huge turnover with the meat, sauce, ripe olives and melted cheese inside. It can stand alone as a substantial snack or, combined with a green salad and soup, makes a quick simple supper.

This easy-to-make recipe for calzone used refrigerated biscuits as the bast. Simply pat five biscuits into an eight-inch round and top half the dough with pizza sauce, slices of salami, halved ripe olives and grated cheeses. Then fold the dough over, pinching the sides together like a turnover, and bake in a hot oven.

For an attractive golden brown appearance, brush an egg glaze on top of the turnover before baking. A whole beaten egg or an egg white mixed with a little water makes a nice glaze.

Like pizza, use one cheese that melts well, such as Mozzarella or Jack, and a cheese with character — Parmesan and Romano are good choices. For the meat salami is good, so is pepperoni. And be sure to use plenty of ripe olives — the combination with a pungent cheese and spicy sausage is irresistible.

CALZONE

1 (10 ounce) can refrigerated biscuits
½ cup pizza sauce
10 thin slices salami
¾ cup pitted ripe olives, halved lengthwise
1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese

For each calzone, press 5 biscuits into a flat cake; roll or pat out to make an 8-inch diameter circle. Spread ¼ cup pizza sauce over half the dough circle to within ½-inch of the edge. Top sauce with 5 slices of salami, half the olives, ½ cup Mozzarella and ¼ cup Parmesan cheese.

Fold the plain half over the filling to resemble a turnover; pinch or crimp to seal. On a greased baking sheet, place each calzone 1½ inches apart. Bake at 500 degrees F. for 6 minutes, or until golden brown. Serves 2-4.

Corn 'n Cheese, A Good Combo

CHEESY CORN

In saucepan, combine 1 can condensed cheese soup and 2 cups (about 16 ounces) whole kernel golden corn, drained. Heat, stir occasionally. Thin to desired consistency with water. Makes about 2 cups, 4 servings.

CONEY ISLANDS

In frying pan, brown 4 wieners, split lenthwise, in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Add 1 can condensed beef soup and ⅓ cup water. Heat; stir. Place wieners in split and toasted hot dog buns; spoon beef over. Garnish with chopped onion. Makes 4 sandwiches.

SWISS STEAK

Pound ¼ cup seasoned flour into 1½ pounds round steak (¾" thick); cut into serving-size pieces. In frying pan, brown steak in 2 tablespoons shortening; pour off fat. Add 1 can condensed vegetable soup, ½ soup can water and 1 cup sliced onions. Cover; simmer 1½ hours or until done. Stir occasionally. Serve with mashed potatoes. Makes 4-6 servings.

Chicken, Not Too Fancy But Available, Versatile

By PIERRE FRANEY

There are many inescapable associations in the world of food and if you ask any Frenchman to associate words with foods, the word chicken would inevitably bring to mind the famous remark of my countryman Henri IV: "Je veux qu'il n'y ait si pauvre paysan en mon royaume qu'il n'ait tous les dimanches sa poule au pot." (I wish there to be no peasant in my kingdom so poor that he cannot have a chicken in his pot every Sunday.)

Chicken may not be the most aristocratic of foods, but it is certainly the most versatile, whether simply stewed or turned into a fine ragout with a rich burgundy sauce.

Chicken is the most available of foods. And in addition to its incredible number of uses, it may well pose fewer pitfalls than any other food when it comes to cooking.

The danger in cooking chicken is undercooking. Nevertheless, many tourists have discovered in France there are those who prefer chicken — when cooked on a spit, for example — a bit underdone.

There is a good deal of latitude in the cooking conditions for chicken. If the cooking time is 30 minutes, to choose a random example, and the time is extended five or 10 minutes, chances are the dish will still be fine. To put it another way, the cooking time for most chicken dishes — as opposed to fish — is about as flexible as any meat dish that comes to mind.

In the recipe outlined here, the chicken is first placed under the broiler, turned to broil on the second side, then baked until done. The broiling is to give texture to the skin of the fowl before the dish is finished with oven heat.

In this all-in-one dish, the chicken is baked together with pre-cooked vegetables for the last few minutes. Actually the preparation of the vegetables requires a little more time and effort than does the chicken. Therefore it is best to prepare the vegetables before you proceed to the chicken.

CHICKEN GRILLED WITH MUSTARD

1 four-pound chicken, split for broiling
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons imported mustard, such as Dijon or Dusseldorf
2 tablespoons peanut oil
Sauteed vegetables, see recipe below
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

1. Preheat the broiler.

2. Sprinkle the chicken halves with salt and pepper. Arrange the halves in one layer on a baking dish and brush on all sides with mustard.

3. Arrange the chicken, skin side down, on the dish and sprinkle the top with oil.

4. Place under the broiler and cook 10 minutes. Turn the halves and broil 10 minutes longer.

5. Pour off all fat from the baking dish. Turn the chicken pieces.

6. Reduce the oven heat to 400°F.

7. Scatter the sauteed vegetables around the chicken and place chicken in the oven. Bake 10 minutes.

8. Place the chicken in the baking dish on the stove. Add vinegar to the pan liquid, cook a few seconds over high heat. Sprinkle with parsley.

SAUTEED VEGETABLES

¾ pound very small potatoes, peeled
1 large carrot, about one-quarter pound, trimmed and scraped
4 small white onions, peeled
Salt to taste
2 tablespoons butter
12 mushrooms, about one-third pound
Freshly ground pepper to taste.

1. If the potatoes are not very small, cut them in half. Put them in a skillet with water to cover.

2. Cut the carrots into two-inch lengths. Cut each length into quarters. Cut the onions in half.

3. Add the carrots and onions to the potatoes. Add salt to taste and bring to the boil. Let boil 10 minutes and drain.

4. Add the butter to a skillet, and when it's hot, but not brown, add the vegetables. Add mushrooms and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Continue cooking, shaking the skillet and stirring, about seven or eight minutes.

Yield: 4 servings.

CANADIANS FAVOR BEEF

Beef continues to be the favorite meat of Canadians. Since everyone is concerned with getting the best value for the beef dollar, better knowledge of a few basic buying facts can clear up a lot of meat-counter confusion and help keep food budgets better balanced.

The important qualities of beef are nutrition and flavor which have no relationship to cost or tenderness. Today good beef steak buys are blade, cross rib and flank steaks. Pound for pound, these less tender cuts are just as flavorful and nutritious as the more tender cuts like sirloin, T-bone and wing. Furthermore, the nutritional value of the lean meat muscle is the same, regardless of grade or cut. Meat is one of our best sources of protein and also an important source of fat, iron and the B vitamins niacin, thiamin, riboflavin and folic acid.

However, the price of meat is determined by supply and demand, by degree of tenderness and ease of preparation, rather than by nutritive value. Tenderness in beef is partly determined by the amount of connective tissue holding the fibres together. The more the connective tissue, the tougher the meat. Exercise builds up connective tissue. Muscles in the round and chuck of the animal get the most exercise while it is grazing and therefore produce less tender cuts than those from the little exercised back or loin section. For those concerned with getting best value for the beef dollar, tenderizing these less tender cuts of meat is being realistic.

Meat can be mechanically tenderized by pounding, grinding and cutting. Pound the meat with a meat pounder or score it with a knife to a depth of ¼ inch. This breaks down the connective tissue.

Cooking in moist heat can tenderize less tender steaks. Moisture and low heat soften the meat fibers and connective tissues. The meat juices that have escaped may be saved to prepere gravy. The usual methods are braising and cooking in liquid in covered utensils. Brown meat over moderately low heat or in a 325°F (160°C) oven until tender and well done.

Marinating meat before cooking adds flavor and sometimes helps to tenderize. The length of time required varies from 4 to 12 hours, depending on the cut of meat and the flovor desired. Oil and seasonings, in combination with vinegar, wine or lemon juice, make up the usual marinade. Use a glass or china dish because an acid like vinegar can pit metal. Blend marinade ingredients well. Place steak in dish and coat it on all sides with marinade. Turn the meat at least once while marinating for even tenderizing and flavor.

Chinese Meals, Gourmet Delights

PEKING (Reuter) — Communism has transformed the face of China, but the centuries-old traditions of opulent Chinese gastronomy remain as a glorious, gluttonous legacy of the past.

Millions of people in China lead the austere and regimented life of a developing socialist state, but workers can still be seen in restaurants gorging on a majestic 12-course banquet fit for a Mandarin of old.

Only France can begin to match the mouth-watering variety of China's cuisine. A trip to three major Chinese cities can pitch you into an epicurean paradise.

Peking's culinary masterpiece is rich duck. Shanghai tempts you with succulent freshwater crabs. Canton offers everything from hedgehog to suckling pig.

It is best to forget your expanding wastline, throw calorie charts to the winds, and gorge, often in regal surroundings that inspire the gourmet.

For instance, Canton's Bei Yuan restaurant is an old merchant's house dotted with banquet rooms that overlook a Chinese garden with fountains, a picturesque bridge and even a tree growing through the roof.

Shanghai's Renmin Restaurant, once a nightclub, has retained its flashy art nouveau decor, and beneath the pastel-shaded arches workers happily slurp their soup.

A fine spot to sample it is The Sick Duck — so nicknamed by the Chinese because the restaurant is next to a hospital. The chef presents the duck with great panache, and gourmets solmenly toast it with Mao-tai, a fiery sorghum-based liquor that can help you breathe through your toes.

Vegetarian restaurants offer you esoteric treats like sesame seed cutlets and lotus root soup. The list is endless. For the determined gourmet, the Chinese capital offers an almost bewildering choice.

Eating out in China has fixed ground rules. Punctuality is vital, meals are taken early in the evening, and your digestion will just have to adjust. Tipping is tabu.

Foreigners often are herded into backroom banquet halls, away from the workers. Prices there rise accordingly.

You can insist on "integrating with the masses," but the restaurant staff then displays an embarrassing tendency to sweep the Chinese customers away from a table to make room for the foreigners.

Canton, whose cuisine is perhaps the most familiar to the Western fan of Chinese food, is probably the best place to indulge in exotica from the country's cooking repertoire.

The wild game restaurant has tested the nerve of many a Western businessman attending the bi-annual trades fair in the southern Chinese city. It offers monkeys, hedgehogs and civet cats.

But the great Cantonese winter speciality is snake, and the restaurant devoted to the wriggly creatures offers snake soup with three different serpents in it, as well as deep-fried python skin.

No need to worry, however. Wherever you go that prosaic old standby — sweet and sour pork — can be supplied for the nervous, uninitiated visitors.

Too busy to sew and save money on new clothes? Consider a few quick-sew tips: Feed everything through the machine without cutting the thread. Stitch until you must press before you can sew more. Use fabric matching thread to machine baste and forget about removing it unless is shows outside. Turn up hems and top-stitch; add a couple more rows of top-stitching for a decoration. That's what the garment industry does on the production line.

All the too-short, out-of-style clothes at garage sales and thrift shops keep hanging in there even when prices are very low. Wouldn't the kids loves to have a few of them for dress-up play and backyard circuses? Take the kids along and let them choose their fun clothes. You can't buy fun much cheaper.

Your rear view mirror is probably glued onto the windshield and may not fall for years. If it does, you'll pay at least $1.50 to have it remounted. Yoy can do it yourself. All the auto repairman does is scape the old glue off with a razor blade, apply a coat of extra-strong glue (according to direections) and stick the mirror back on. (The intense heat that builds up in a parked auto can cause old glue to weaken.)

Marinating Pays In Taste, Savings

For tender, juicy beef, you don't always have to rely on expensive roasts. The secret is to marinate less tender, cheaper cuts. The results are delicious and appetizing.

And in these days of rising beef prices it's smart to be able to choose less expensive, tougher cuts and to know how to prepare and cook them.

To marinate means to soak meat, game or fish in a mixture of wine or an acidic mixture, oil, vegetables, herbs and spices. Marinating tenderizes the meat tissues and adds flavor at the same time. All marinades need time to work. For small beef cubes, two to four hours is sufficient; blade, cross-rib and round steaks require at least eight to 10 hours; flank steak and short-ribs should be marinated up to 24 hours.

To make the most of a marinade, a plastic bag is best for enclosing the meat with the liquid. (I always place one bag in another to make a double bag.) Secure the top loosely. Set in a dish or pan in refrigerator just in case of puncture or leakage. I also use the plastic bag technique for cubes of meat. No turning is required when meat is surrounded by marinade in the bag. However, small cuts and cubes can be marinated in a shallow glass or enamelled dish. Never marinate meat in an aluminium or metal container because the mixture may develop a metallic taste.

At the end of soaking, the meat may be cooked in or brushed with the marinade. Or it may be added to a sauce for serving with the meat.

MARINATED BRAISED BEEF WITH ONIONS
Makes eight servings

- 3½ pound round, rump or lean chuck beef
- 2 cloves of garlic, peeled
- 2 medium onions, thinly sliced
- 2 medium carrots, thinly sliced
- 2 stalks celery, thinly sliced or ½ teaspoon celery seed
- 1 cup red wine
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon thyme
- 10 peppercorns
- 2 tablespoons drippings or oil

Bruise the garlic cloves or crush them if you prefer a stronger flavor. Combine with the onions, carrots, celery, wine, ¼ cup oil, vinegar, salt, thyme and peppercorns in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 2 minutes. Pour into a bowl and cool. Place meat in a double plastic bag. Pour marinade over meat. Close top of bag with twist or tie. Place in a pan or dish in refrigerator. Allow meat to marinate for 24 hours. Take meat from marinade and pat dry with paper towels. Strain marinade and reserve for cooking and basting roast. Heat two tablespoons drippings or oil in a deep flameproof casserole. Brown the meat on all sides. Pour a little of the marinade over roast. Cover pot and braise roast in a 325°F. oven for two to 2½ hours or until meat is very tender. Baste occasionally during cooking with reserved marinade, if you wish. Place roast on platter or slice it and keep hot. Pour reserved marinade in casserole. Bring to a boil and reduce it a little. Spoon a little over the meat to moisten it and serve the best separately as a sauce. Garnish with glazed onions.

GLAZED ONIONS
Makes garnish for eight servings

- 16 small onions, peeled
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon sugar

Cook onions in boiling water for two minutes, then plunge into cold water and drain. Melt butter in saucepan for frying pan. Add onions and sugar. Cook gently over low medium heat, shaking the pan occasionally for six to seven minutes or until the onions are tender and glazd a caramel color.

SLICK TRICK: When preparing onions, trim off as little root and top as possible to prevent onion from falling apart when cooking. Cut a cross in the root end after peeling to also help prevent this.

SPICY MUSTARD MARINADE

- 2 cups orange juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup tomato ketchup
- 1 tablespoon corn oil
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger

Mix all the ingredients together in a saucepan. Bring to the boil slowly, stirring and simmer for three minutes. Cool before using as a marinade for beef, pork or chicken. Marinate the meat or poultry in a plastic bag in the refrigerator for the desired time — at least four hours or overnight. Then use the marinade for basting during roasting.

YOGURT BUMPS FRIES

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian office cafeterias have been hit by a health-food revolution.

"It's the answer to a nutritionist's dream," said Carolyn Clark, chief dietician for VS Services Ltd., Canada's largest catering firm. "Now more and more people are demanding healthy food as a right."

Doughnuts and french fries are out; yogurt and salad bars are in.

"Two years ago you couldn't give yogurt away and now its sales have taken off," said Ron Wachal of Canteen of Canada Ltd. "White bread sandwich sales have fallen off and there's a big demand for stone ground rye and country-style whole wheat. Any back-to-nature products are selling well."

Catering companies are introducing salad bars, homemade soups and simple meals made with natural foods.

The effects are wide-ranging since one-quarter of Canada's workers eat at a company cafeteria every day.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Can you help me find a job as live-in housekeeper in a motherless home? It must be a modern house in the most desirable section of the city. (No country or farm locations, please.) The father must be between 38 and 50, no older. He must be at least 6 feet tall, since I am a well-proportioned 5 feet 7 and do not feel comfortable with shorter men around me.

I dress well, am attractive and well-groomed. I enjoy music, disco dancing and outdoor sports. I am 36, in excellent health, and can furnish references. — LOOKING.

DEAR LOOKING: You sound as though you are looking for a man, not a job. If it's a position you're after, register with an employment agency or place an ad in the classified section of this newspaper. If it's a man you're after, your approach is clever, but much too obvious.

DEAR ABBY: OFF MY CHEST wrote that her daughter in college sent all her bills home regularly, but never enclosed a personal note. ("It would mean so much if she just wrote 'love' and signed her name.")

May I respond to that letter?

First of all, a girl old enough to go away to college should be trusted with her own chequing account and learn how to be responsible for her own bills. Perhaps the daughter is expressing (or not expressing) her resentment at so much parental control.

Second, children learn from us — their parents. If we don't tell them how we feel, then they won't tell us how they feel. If we want love and openness, we must communicate our needs to the others.

I would suggest, OFF MY CHEST, that you tell your daughter you need a point of contact with her, since you love her, and her absence after 18 years leaves a hole in your life.

Children who grow up and leave home need both roots and freedom. — I.M.

DEAR I.M.: U.R. an excellent psychologist. Thank you for a fine letter.

DEAR ABBY: KNOTTED KNUCKLES, suffering from arthritis, asked you if it is socially acceptable to type personal letters because holding a pen is often times too painful.

I'm glad you said yes. For those with crippling arthritis in the hands, here's a suggestion:

Stick a pen (or pencil) through a large raw potato which can be easily and painlessly grasped by an arthritic hand.

Billy Rose won a shorthand contest using this method when he was unable to hold a pencil because his index finger was in a splint.

Pass this on to your readers if you think it's worth space in your column. — BRUCE L.

DEAR BRUCE: Considering the number of readers out there suffering from arthritis, if your suggestion relieves the pain of just one, it's well worth the space.

'HYPER' DIET CAN HELP

I have a hyperactive child. He doesn't seem to be doing very well with drugs. I recently heard that there are some kinds of diets that can cut down his constant activity. Do you know if these diets are helpful? — Mrs. M.N.M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

Readers must understand that a so-called hyperactive child is not simply a child who is unusually energetic. "Hyperactive" is the medical term given to children who are in a constant state of motion and who do not take a normal period of rest from their excessive activity. The problem is a very complicated one and demands the combined efforts of drugs and psychiatric help.

Frequently, the condition continues into mid-adolescence. In a strange way, the drug that is used to control the hyperactivity is the amphetamine which, paradoxically, is also used to increase activity.

Doctors in various parts of the country have made the observation that hyperractive children can be controlled and their irritability reduced when they are put on special diets. These diets are free of artificial flavors and colorings, and natural salicylates.

At the University of Wisconsin and at the Memorial Hospital in Chicago, a sizable group of hyperactive children were treated with a diet free of additives. Although there was no definitive conclusion by the teachers and the psychologists, the parents believe that their children were less active on the experimental diet.

Even though there is no definitive conclusion from a purely scientific point of view, I do believe it is worth a try for those children who have not reacted satisfactorily to the orthodox treatment of drugs and psychotherapy. Certainly, there is no danger in such a diet. Even if there are but minimal advantages, your child deserves the test of such a dietary regime.

My daughter won't give up smoking because she says all her friends who tried to stop have gained weight. To these youngsters, the few extra pounds seem to be more important than their health. Can't they stop smoking and still maintain their weight? —Mr. T.G.

Dear Mrs. G.:

It is not unusual for people to gain weight when they stop smoking. The added nibbling, to compensate for their deprivation, will naturally add up in calories.

There are some doctors who believe that a temporary metabolic change occurs when one gives up tobacco. This, too, may be responsible for gain in weight. When the body adjusts to these metabolic changes the weight can be more easily controlled.

With a sensible regime of eating, the temporary weight gain can be quickly lost, and your daughter will be freed of the albatross of tobacco.

Dear Mrs.E.:

This story is highly suggestive of an allergic reaction. Many children who seem, to be free from coughs during the day may begin to cough at night in their own rooms. Stuffed toys, dusty playthings, rugs and bedding should be suspected as possible causes.

Try having your child sleep in another room if you can. See if there is a change in her coughing pattern.

First Bank Strike Starts

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's first legal bank strike started here today, but the Montreal City and District Savings Bank reported it had opened half its branches anyway to provide customers with "essential services."

Bank spokesman Jacques Julien said in an interview that branch managers, assisted by supervisors from head office, would keep open 60 of the bank's 111 area branches today, and that all would be opened on a rotating basis if the strike lasts.

"Customers can go to their regular branch," Julien said, explaining that the manager will be there, even if nobody else is. If the manager can't help, he will direct customers to the nearest branch maintaining operations with supervisory personnel.

The strike by 950 unionized workers of the bank, a Montreal company with assets of about $1.1 billion, followed a rejection by the workers Tuesday night of the company's latest wage offer.

The workers, organized 12 years ago, are members of the Office and Professional Employees International Union.

Wages are the only issue in the City and District dispute. Negotiations on salary issues in the current two-year agreement were reopened Jan. 1, as soon as Anti-Inflation Board controls were dropped. The contract ends Dec. 31, 1979.

The company has offered a raise of 9¾ per cent, but the union has demanded 13 per cent. The last average weekly wage was $199.14. The increase they are seeking would bring their pay to $220.

Just over a week ago the last impediment to a strike was cleared when Labor Minister Martin O'Connell informed both parties he would not appoint a conciliation commissioner.

At that time Laraine Singler, head of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) drive to unionize banks, suggested a City and District walkout would have a psychological impact on the CLC's effort to organize workers at the 11 major chartered banks.

So far only 1,000 employees, or one per cent of the 100,000 potential members working for these banks, have joined a union.

Chretien Supports Lower $

OTTAWA (FP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien told the Commons Tuesday he hopes the Canadian dollar will continue at a devalued level for the next few months so that this country will continue to experience record trade levels.

He vigorously defended the government's policy of borrowing abroad to help prop up the weakened dollar. Last year it borrowed close to $5 billion abroad to slow its slide.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark opened the question period in the resumed session of parliament by asking why the government was going to borrow funds in Japan.

He pointed out this will be the sixth time the government has gone abroad to get funds to bolster the dollar. He said the policy has now failed five times and he wondered what made the government think it is going to work this time.

Chretien said Canada was not the first to borrow from Japan. He said the Americans were there a few months ago.

The minister said the terms of the deal in Japan were the best.

CONSUMERS A BIT MORE OPTIMISTIC

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers are generally more optimistic about their own financial position than they were a year ago, the Conference Board in Canada said today.

But the board, a private forecasting group, said its quarterly survey of consumer buying intentions in November found consumers remained pessimistic about inflation and unemployment.

The survey found there was a decline in consumer buying intentions for some major items over the next six months from the last survey in September, but an increase from this time last year.

Buying intentions were down from the previous survey for new cars, new houses, television sets, dishwashers, vacuum cleaners, floor covering and vacations away from home.

The conference board said buying intentions for most of these items were up from a year ago.

Among those surveyed, 22.3 per cent thought they were better off financially than six months ago compared with 19.4 per cent in the survey a year ago.

The percentage who thought they would be better off in six months rose to 24.4 per cent from 22.4 per cent a year ago.

Only 14.6 per cent thought there would be more jobs in six months, up slightly from 12.9 per cent a year ago. The percentage of those surveyed who thought inflation would increase in the next six months increased to 44.6 per cent from 40.6 per cent a year ago.

Out-and-Out Bigotry Say Postal Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's treatment of postal workers "can only be described as out-and-out bigotry," Kealey Cummings, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today.

Cummings and Andy Stewart, president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, appeared at a news conference to support the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot said he has appealed to the entire labor movement for financial and moral support in the postal workers' ongoing battle with the federal government.

Cummings and Stewart undertook to distribute across the country a pamphlet prepared by CUPW to explain its rebellion.

Parrot said his union needs financial assistance to fight charges laid against leaders of the union following mass defiance by CUPW's 23,000 members of a parliamentary back-to-work order.

The union, without a contract since June 30, 1977, was ordered back on the job days after the start of its legal strike. The union resisted the back-to-work order until Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne threatened mass firings.

Cummings said an attack on one group of workers constitutes an attack on all groups of workers.

Parrot said his union has declared Feb. 14 National MP's Day.

"What better occasion could this be for such a tribute than St. Valentine's Day?"

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2◇	2♡
2♠	Pass	4♠

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

Let's assume you're declarer at four spades and West leads the queen and another heart. East wins the second heart with the king and continues with the ace. This presents you with a problem of sorts, since it is virtually certain from the bidding and play that West started with a doubleton heart.

If you ruff the third heart with the ten, you say to yourself, and West is able to overruff with the jack, you are sure to go down. If you decide, however, to ruff with the king, you run the risk that West may have started with three trumps to the jack, in which case you will also go down one.

But if your thoughts have been running in only these two channels — which card to ruff with — you are not giving yourself a fair shake. The plain fact is that you should not ruff at all! Instead, you should discard your eight of diamonds on the ace of hearts.

This discard clears the atmosphere considerably. In the actual case, you have no trouble making the rest of the tricks, whatever East plays next. For practical purposes, your diamond discard at trick three guarantees the contract.

It is true that East could have defeated the contract had he been smart enough to play the ace of diamonds at trick three and the ace of hearts at trick four. In that case, you would have to go down one regardless of which card you elected to ruff with.

The moral that emerges here is clear enough. If you are given a chance to make a contract that could have been defeated by better defensive play, you should try to take full advantage of that oppotunity. You're not required to reciprocate your opponent's unintentional generosity!

SOLUTIONS THURSDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, January 25
by Sidney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take conservative course. Fulfill obligations. Assume added responsibility. You have more authority — and money. In personal life, relationship is strong, intensified. Yes, you are inextricably involved!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on what seems far away, travel, distant lands, language, communication. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You sense what is to be; you have insight into future. Some may proclaim you a prophet. You learn more about yourself than might be accomplished in a year.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make resolution concerning independence, "creative selfishness." You'll be amply compensated for contributions to special project. Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario. Question concerning money status of one close to you will be answered.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on uniting with those who share common goal, even though you may be wary of "methods." Hunch pays off — former counselor is back in picture. Another Cancer — and an Aquarian — figure prominently. Check legal jargon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Streamline techniques — be economical in moves, claims, expenditures. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Horizons expand — you're able to perceive beyond the immediate. Someone who can open doors of opportunity might decide to become an ally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You find a way to express yourself in creative, meaningful manner. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons figure in scenario. What now is confining could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Know it and prepare accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain hint from Virgo message. Be analytical. Don't accept merely that something occurred — find reasons, determine why it happened. Dig deep, beneath superficial, deceptive layers. Foundation can be solid if you insist on quality material.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on getting together with relative who has been "estranged." Be diplomatic, especially an answering mail, responding to telephone calls. Taurus, Libra and another Scorpio could figure in scenario. Who own what, where is the money — those questions, and others, can be settled.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message — be aware of costs, ownership, property rights, land deal proposals, standing with one who has much to do with your emotional well-being. Accent on debts, payments, locating lost articles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What seemed financially out-of-reach comes close — within "touching" distance. Cycle high — You get what you request. Number 8 figures prominently. Older individual becomes ally, lends benefit of experience. Money picture is brighter than originally anticipated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 20): Secrets are revealed, assignment draws to conclusion. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You are due for greater recognition, reward. Illustrate and dramatize beliefs — display courage of convictions. Someone behind the scenes will lend helping hand.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on fresh viewpoint, chance to begin anew, creativity, love. Friends, hopes, wishes grab spotlight. Leo figures prominently. Business transaction proves successful. You're able to verify what had been a suspicion or theory. You're in driver's seat!

IF JANUARY 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are unique, introspective, a perfectionist. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles in your life. March and October could be your most significant months of 1979, a year featuring a redefining of goals, rediscovering love, permitting emotional wounds to heal. You complete important project in February. You are perceptive, psychic — members of the opposite sex find you appealing, romantic. If single, you could meet future mate before the year is finished. If married, you take steps which lead to greater emotional and financial security.

We have 4599 for the game today. Two 9's, one 4, one 5. Using all four each time but no othe digits at all, you form expressions for the consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation or factorial symbols, and no words. Don't forget decimals, regular and repeater, also powers and roots. For example, 59+9—4 is a solution for 64.

The limit without a break in continuity seems to be 110. I shall be glad to check solutions, and will send hints to help in future games if requested.

We'll Fight to Bloody Death on Bills - MDs

EDMONTON (UPC) — Alberta's 2,500 doctors may have a major battle on their hands with the provincial government if an investigation into excessive patients' fees leads to legislation controlling how much they can charge.

Gordon Miniely, Alberta's minister of hospitals and health care, has requested the government "conduct an in-depth investigation" into how many doctors charge patients fees in excess of the guidelines laid down by the provincial health care insurance commission.

Miniely promised that if doctors are frequently overcharging he will ask for legislation to outlaw the excesses.

"We'll fight to the bloody death to keep balance billing as an option," Alberta Medical Association executive director Robert Clark said in an interview.

Miniely said doctors have the right to charge patients extra only if the patient agrees to the extra charge.

The government earlier this month awarded doctors a 7 per cent increase in patient fees, a move Miniely said, would cost taxpayers in Alberta between $15 million and $16 million.

Miniely said the increase is expected to boost doctors' salaries by about $2,750 annually. Their current salaries now average between $45,000 and $50,000 after office expenses.

Bob Taylor, communications director for the AMA, said "to catch up with other professions the doctors would need increases of 30 to 35 per cent."

Taylor said roughly 20 per cent of the association's members support balance billing, although it is not known how doctors exceed limitations on extra billing.

Miniely said he will force doctors to either opt-in or opt-out of medicare completely if he finds enough physicians are "routinely" billing their patients more.

Artifacts Back After Century

EDMONTON (CP) — The Blackfoot Indians at Gleichen, about 70 kilometres east of Calgary, will have many of their religious and cultural artifacts returned to them on Friday—after a century-long absence.

"It will be a very big day for the band," Blackfoot chief Leo Pretty Young Man said.

"Some of the artifacts have been gone since the 1800's and it will be nice to have them back."

The artifacts are being returned to start a museum as part of the band's commemoration of the signing of Treaty 7 between the Crown and Alberta's Blackfoot and Cree in 1877.

Band representatives negotiated for about two years with the National Museum of Man in Ottawa for the return of the artifacts, which Pretty Young Man described as "priceless to the Blackfoot."

Museum spokesman John Lomoro said the 500 artifacts include clothing, horse and hunting gear and religious items such as pipes and medicine bags.

Security Camera Stolen

EDMONTON (UPC) — Edmonton police are looking for a thief who not only beat a sophisticated security system but stole part of it.

Police said the thief escaped with one of the remote-controlled cameras mounted in a city shopping centre as a crime deterrent.

"The thief managed to approach the camera without being filmed and then ripped it from its mountings," a police spokesman said.

The camera's value was estimated at $2,000.

Towing Squabble Settled

WINNIPEG (CP) — City council has decided to give United Towing Services Ltd. all its rush-hour towing business this year.

Following complaints about the way McArthur's Towing handled the job last year, the city decided to split the 1979 contract between United and Al's Towing Service Ltd.

Al's backed out of the deal last week, so council voted to give the entire contract to United.

Hopper Population Dips

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — The federal department of agriculture says Alberta's grasshopper population dropped 54 per cent from 1977 to 1978.

Grasshopper populations now are lower than at any time since 1970, the federal agency said in a statement.

Previous surveys have shown that grasshopper numbers can show a dramatic increase from normal levels to severe within a year. A succession of favorable seasons can transform the province-wide population from low levels, as at present, to widespread outbreaks.

Pay Hike in Red Deer

RED DEER (CP) — Mayor Ken Curle, city councillors and senior city hall staff will get a seven-per-cent pay raise retroactive to last Christmas Eve.f

City council approved increases for city hall staff without comment under a system introduced last summer which ties city salaries to increases granted senior city hall staff.

The increase bring the mayor's salary to $21,626 a year and councillors' pay to $5,163 a year.

Lougheed's Foe

CALGARY (CP) — Barb Scott will run as a Liberal against Premier Peter Lougheed in the next provincial election.

A Bouncing Cheque

OTTAWA (CP) — Richard Chenoweth, a doctor in Melbourne, Australia, can't understand how a cheque mailed in Ottawa and bound for Montreal ended up in his mailbox.

Neither can Larry Gibbons of Ottawa, who sent the cheque to pay his November bill at Simpsons in Montreal.

"It was worth it — paying the surcharge," Gibbons chuckled after Chenoweth returned the letter this week. "It was worth all the giggles."

Chenoweth wrote: "For some reason I am unable to fathom why the enclosed letter to Simpsons has arrived at the above address in Australia.

"I hope the delay has not caused you any inconvenience. Anyway it will be a very well travelled letter by the time it reaches its destination."

A post office spokesman laughed when told the story, but said he didn't know how the cheque had ended up in Melbourne.

The letter could have been wet, he said, and stuck to another letter bound for Australia. Or it could have been left at the bottom of an overseas mailbag.

"We get a few strange ones around here," he said. "The farthest afield I've heard of a letter going was to Japan — when it was supposed to go to Toronto."

Firing Of RCMP Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP officers involved in illegal acts should be fired by Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais and prosecuted by provincial attorneys-general at once, a royal commission was told Tuesday by the Civil Liberties Association.

The association criticized Blais for suggesting that the RCMP was only defending national security.

"Any extenuating circumstances should properly be brought out at trial, not in cabinet boardrooms or the back offices of the solicitor-general," the association said.

Court Rules Full Refund To Lawyer for GM Lemon

MONTREAL (CP) — "It was time somebody did something," Leo Kravitz said Tuesday.

The Montreal lawyer won a Supreme Court of Canada case giving him a full refund for the General Motors lemon he bought 10 years ago.

"I wanted to pave the way for consumers. I'm no hero, nor an expert in this field," said Kravits. "It was high time we obtained a definitive stand on the responsibility of automobile manufacturers."

The Supreme Court ruled GM owed Kravitz his original Oldsmobile purchase price of $3,485 as well as $1,785 for the dealer's profits and losses suffered by Kravitz.

Kravitz said he battled the case all the way to the Supreme Court, investing about $20,000 worth of his time, because he "figured somebody should do something for someone else at some time in their life."

The Court ruled that attempts by GM to limit its liability to merely replacing defective parts are barred by the Civil Code of Quebec.

Kravitz, who has taken several cases to court on behalf of the Automobile Protection Association and won them all, said he was not out to discredit General Motors.

Kravitz said that his Oldsmobile was a lemon from the day it left Plamondon Chevrolet-Olds, a local dealership which went out of business long ago.

"As I drove the car off the lot there was a rhythmic noise which was a defective bearing in one wheel — although I didn't know it at the time. That could have caused the wheel to fall off."

In addition, he said, the tires scraped on fenders, the engine dripped oil and the differential and steering mechanisms malfunctioned.

"I'm not finicky with cars, but I was worried about the danger of having an accident with this one. I finally had the car delivered back to the dealer, took my civil action — and bought a new car."

Outside of Quebec, where English common law is practised, a similar court action might be required to establish the same consumer right.

Anarchy Claim On T-Shirt

OTTAWA (CP) — Wearing a "management sucks" T-shirt at work constituted an incitement to anarchy, a federal justice department lawyer told a Public Service Staff Relations Board hearing into the firing of a Canadian Postal Workers Union (CUPW) shop steward.

Jurgen Schneider was sent home May 11 for refusing to take off the T-shirt. The next day he reported to work with it again and had to be escorted out by police. He was fired a month later.

"He was making a statement with his T-shirt," Harvey Newman told the board Tuesday. "His intention was no less than to give to other workers an invitation to anarchy."

Newman told the board on the final day of its hearing that Schneider's actions were "flagrant insubordination by a man who should have known better."

He said firing was a just penalty because the 25-year-old letter sorter "does not appreciate the nature of his wrongdoing and has no rehabilitative potential."

CUPW lawyer Tom McDougall blamed management for the confrontation and called Newman's remarks inflamatory. The whole case was one of anti-union discrimination, he said.

He said supervisor Dennis Sherman instigated the incident when he singled Schneider out on the work floor where T-shirts bearing all kinds of slogans — some of them obscene — are worn.

A language expert told the board Monday that the slogan might seem mild to younger persons but it could be sexually offensive to persons 40 years of age or older.

"Does a man deserve to lose his job because he wears a T-shirt and refuses to remove it when no one else is being asked to remove theirs?" McDougall asked the board.

The board has reserved it decision.

Cullen Still Wants UIC Back

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite hampered efforts, Employment Minister Bud Cullen says his officials will continue to try retrieving the $4.3 million in unemployment insurance benefits mistakenly paid to claimants in three provinces nearly a year ago.

Cullen refused a request by Maurice Dupras (L-Labelle) in the Commons to cancel attempts to recover the money paid because of a mistaken calculation by a public servant.

"We are looking at each case sympathetically," Cullen said. He said the law prohibits him from writing off the entire bill.

Cullen's interpretation of the law, however, has been put into question by a semi-judicial ruling that the government has no right to recover the money because it wasn't the fault of the recipients.

That ruling was made recently by a board of referees in Halifax. The employment and immigration commission is appealing the ruling to an umpire of the federal court. Theoretically, the question could end up in the Supreme Court, said Larry St. Laurent, head of the insurance program.

St. Laurent said the government so far has retrieved $676,519 from the more than 16,500 unemployed persons who were overpaid in Nova Scotia, Quebec and British Columbia.

He said the government has written off $8,528 owed by 32 persons who have only a remote possibility of getting a job to repay the money within the next couple of years. He said they include disabled and blind persons, very old and very young persons.

The Caolition For Full Employment in Halifax has appealed several cases. It won the case the commission now is appealing. The coalition lost two other group cases and now is appealing those to an umpire next month.

Tax Cuts Not Passed On?

OTTAWA (CP) — A consumer group said Tuesday that manufacturers and distributors, not consumers, are reaping the benefits of the federal government's recent cut in sales tax.

And the government acknowledged it can be difficult to tell whether the tax cut is being passed on.

In a letter to Finance Minister Jean Chretien, the Consumers Association of Canada said consumers are not seeing lower prices as a result of the drop to nine from 12 per cent in sales tax announced by Chretien in his Nov. 16 budget.

At that time, Chretien said the cut in the tax, applied at the manufacturing level, would probably take two or three months to reach consumers.

In the Commons, Consumer Affairs Minister Warren Allmand said his department is monitoring the price of various consumer products through regional offices across the country.

But he said it is difficult to monitor smaller items, such as appliances, where the price is low.

Outside the House, Allmand said his department has received very few complaints that manufacturers aren't passing on the sales tax cut, but added there is no doubt "we won't have the same capacity as the AIB (anti-inflation board) to monitor prices," he said.

Also outside the House, Chretien said there has been no indication the cut is not being passed on, but suggested the government expected there would be some cases where it wasn't.

"We don't expect everyone to pass the cut through," he said.

Sovereignty Backdown

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP David Crombie has dropped the idea that the federal government should be willing to negotiate sovereignty association with Quebec.

The government must always be willing to discuss possible changes within the federal system but should not negotiate sovereignty association, the MP for Toronto Rosedale told reporters Tuesday.

The former Toronto mayor made the declaration in an attempt to stifle a controversy over remarks he made in an interview several weeks ago that delighted the Liberals and embarrassed the Conservatives.

In the interview on the CTV television network, Crombie said it would be silly for the federal government not to negotiate sovereignty association.

When MPs returned to the Commons Tuesday after their Christmas break, Liberals were quick to pounce on Crombie's remarks to make some political hay.

Since the Crombie interview, both Conservative Leader Joe Clark and former prime minister John Diefenbaker have said the Conservatives should not negotiate sovereignty association.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in the House that Diefenbaker, Clark and Crombie each have different opinions on sovereignty association.

"There is no position by the opposition on this question," Trudeau said amid howls of protest from the Conservative benches.

Jean-Robert Gauthier (L — Ottawa-Vanier) unsuccessfully tried to move a motion saying: "That the leader of the opposition and his colleague from Rosedale (Crombie) be asked to refrain from further comment on sovereignty association or any other similar semantic gimmick."

Parliament Hill veterans are predicting Crombie's initial remarks on the subject will haunt the Conservatives in the next election campaign as the Liberals claim Clark would help negotiate an independent Quebec.

TAX DETAILS GOING OUT TO MOTHERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Instructions on how to claim the new $200-per-child tax credit have been sent to mothers.

Welfare Minister Monique Begin said Tuesday the instructions and an application form accompany family allowance cheques.

The instructions and application are necessary because of legislation passed last monthy under which the family allowance is reduced as of Jan. 1 but most parents will receive a tax credit for each child.

$6M Debris Bill to Russia

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada submitted a $6 million damage claim to the Soviet Union Tuesday for cleaning up radioactive debris from a Russian satellite that crashed in the North a year ago.

The claim, the first of its kind, was presented to the Soviet ambassador by External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson. The government claim was handed to the ambassador only one day before the deadline for such submissions under international law.

Jamieson told reporters the Soviet ambassador did not react to the claim but promised to pass it on to Moscow.

While the Soviet Union has never officially accepted responsibility for cleanup costs, the external affairs minister said Soviet comments imply acceptance.

"I presented the ambassador literally a briefcase full of documents," Jamieson said. But he said he promised not to release cost details until next Wednesday.

However, the external affairs minister said in a note to the Soviet government that Ottawa is leaving the door open to submitting further cost claims for "damage not yet identified or determined or ... damage that has not yet occurred."

He also said to reporters the $6 million bill includes only expenses over normal salary and equipment costs. Canadian servicemen working on the project would have been doing other things if they weren't helping the cleanup operation.

The damage claim winds up months of searching for radioactive particles from the Soviet Cosmos-954 satellite which plunged to earth in the Northwest Territories in January, 1978.

Government experts estimated last fall total cost of the recovery operation was $13.7 million including normal salaries and use of equipment. The $6 million bill Canada submitted is understood to include such items as overtime, additional travel and rental of equipment.

Filing May Be Easier

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department says it plans to introduce a new simplified tax form next year for everyone except those with business, investment or self-employment income.

The new format could make filing easier for about eight million taxpayers.

"The new return will benefit particularly people with little or no income who must file a tax return to claim the new child tax credit," the department said.

READER'S DIGEST WILL STAY PUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Ltd. has decided against transferring any of its 650 head office employees out of Montreal, an internal company memo indicates.

President Ralph Hancox says in the memo, a copy of which was obtained by Le Devoir, a study conducted by an independent consulting firm concludes the Montreal head office best meets the company's current needs.

The board of directors has approved the consultants' recommendation to renovate and redecorate offices in company buildings, says the memo.

Rumors began circulating last August that Reader's Digest might be planning to move its head office operation to Toronto. They were sparked by a questionnaire distributed to Montreal-based employees on the subject of the head office location.

At the time, then-president Paul Zimmerman explained that growth in head office activity might force a centralization of operations. As 70 per cent of the employees are English-speaking, some thought a move to Toronto might be in the works.

Several weeks after the poll, Zimmerman resigned for "family reasons" and moved to Toronto to become a vice-president for the Torstar Corp.

He was replaced by Hancox, who is said to favor keeping the head office in Montreal.

Cuba Visit Vetoed, Quebec Fuming

QUEBEC (CP) — Ottawa blocked a visit by a Cuban cultural delegation to Quebec this week, a move that has the Quebec government fuming.

Four Parti Quebecois government ministers and three backbenchers attacked the external affairs department Tuesday for its "insulting" refusal to issue visas to the delegation.

The group, which was to take part in the founding of a Quebec-Cuba cultural exchange group over the weekend, was to have stayed from last Thursday to Tuesday.

"Such a refusal is an insult to the Quebec people and to the national assembly, which was supposed to extend its official welcome to the Cuban delegation," the seven members said in a telegram to federal External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson.

The protest came from Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry, Immigration Minister Jacques Couture, Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure, Communications Minister Louis O'Neill, Elie Fallu (Terrebonne), Pierre de Bellefeuille (Deux-Montagnes) and Gilbert Paquette (Rosemont).

The visas were refused by the Canadian embassy in Havana, the telegram said.

In Ottawa, an external affairs spokesman said the visa requests were turned down simply because they were submitted on shorter notice than normal.

"It was explained to them — and they are quite aware of procedure — that we can't issue visas on a few days notice. They said 'fine' and it stayed there."

Jamieson, who has just returned from a Caribbean trip, will be briefed on the issue today, the spokesman added.

Slush Fund Dismissal

TORONTO (CP) — A small-claims court has dismissed a suit in which a journalist alleged he was forced to contribute to a slush fund to re-elect Dennis McDermott to the post of Canadian director of the United Auto Workers.

Jojo Chintoh, 35, said he was forced to contribute $10 a month for 40 months to a UAW fund for McDermott's re-election. Chintoh was publisher of the UAW newsletter at the time.

He told the court he was fired in June, 1977, because he stopped paying into the fund earlier that year.

The court dismissed Chintoh's $400 claim against McDermott because it found his contributions were made voluntarily and were not a condition of his employment.

McDermott had earlier denied the allegations and had tried unsuccessfully to have the case thrown out of court. He said the fund was a long-standing institution created before he became Canadian director of the union.

Debut for Aurora

OTTAWA (CP) — The Aurora patrol aircraft, centre of political controversy three years ago, will make its debut — on time and on budget — at Lockheed's California plant Thursday.

Supply Minister Pierre De Bane is to accept the plane formally on behalf of the government at the Burbank plant, starting the sophisticated long-range patrol aircraft on its way to the armed forces.

Lockheed plans to deliver the first Aurora to the armed forces in May, 1980, allowing more than a year for flight testing.

Brig.-Gen. George MacFarlane, Aurora project manager, says the $1-billion contract will give the armed forces 18 planes which are more advanced in several ways than similar long-range patrol aircraft with the United States forces. The Aurora is an altered version of the Lockheed P-3C Orion and will contain several new navigational and detection devices.

MacFarlane said in a recent interview the Aurora is on schedule and within budget. He expected some federal sales tax savings.

There are still some unhappy rumblings in military and industry circles about some aspects of the Aurora decision, such as the number of planes and shared technology.

But the atmosphere is much calmer than it was in 1975 when cabinet ministers squabbled and a supply department official sued his minister, Jean-Pierre Goyer, for libel.

Cabinet pared to 18 the original plan to buy 30 planes to replace the 26-plane Argus submarine-hunting fleet. And Goyer took control of negotiations with financially-troubled Lockheed after an earlier agreement was aborted.

Stop Bickering, Get On With It, Trustees Warned

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Greater Victoria school trustees have been reprimanded by schools superintendent Allan Stables for divisive behavior.

Stables warned administrators will start making board decisions if trustees fail to resolve their differences.

Last Monday the board, caught up in a power struggle between conservative and liberal factions, failed to finish even one-third of the agenda items.

Another meeting is scheduled tonight although the board has already met four times this month and there are usually only two regular monthly meetings.

Stables said the board mistakenly believes it can operate along two-party lines.

Trustees must work together if the board wants to run the district's affairs, he commented.

"I can't afford to let the district stop operating. It will go on regardless of board debate but more and more decisions will be made by administrators," he said.

Stables told trustees to get on with board business "so I won't be making decisions that this board should be making."

The procedure, from Bourinot's Rules of Order, is used to close debate on an issue and to call an immediate vote.

Brice failed in an attempt to keep use of the procedure out of board meetings, but said she will reword the motion and try again Wednesday.

Although never before used during a school board meeting, it was employed twice last week to force closure of debate, Brice said.

Bourinot was cited to force a vote on the Camosun College appointment issue after 55 minutes of debate, she said.

Brice said she wants to restrict use of the procedure because it stifles free speech and gives extreme power to two people: the caller and seconder of the motion.

She will ask the board to develop guidelines for use of the procedure only in extreme circumstances.

Chairman Carol Pickup said she was perplexed by Brice's request because the Bourinot procedure protects the rights of the majority.

"There is a fine line between freedom and licence," Pickup told Brice.

Manipulation of meetings by trustees through filibustering and other tactics is an example of license and must stop, Pickup said.

Trustee Peter Yorke said the procedure was "heinous" and has no place in democracy because it forced premature closure of debate.

"I have no recollection of closure ever being used in a municipality," he said.

Closure is being used by the board majority as a tool to muzzle the other trustees, Yorke charged.

Barrett TV Challenge

Barrett said Tuesday Bennett gave a "patently false" answer when asked on a Vancouver television program what happens to profits from CanCel.

Bennett told the woman caller on a BCTV program that profits went "to pay off their debts."

Barrett hauled out CanCel's annual reports for every year since 1973 that show the Crown corporation made significant profits each year.

Those profits were turned back into the company for modernization and upgrading to improve the facilities and working conditions, Barrett said.

The former premier who stepped in when CanCel was about to close in 1973, said he is tired of Bennett trying to confuse the people with his claims that the NDP purchases were money-losers.

"The premier did not tell the truth to that question," he told reporters.

The highest the CanCel debt ever reached was $79 million, and that was under the Socreds, he said.

Total profits over the years have been $134 million.

He said $80 million has gone into modernizing the facilities of the interior forest products company.

"If there is to be intelligent debate in this province, Premier Bennett has got to start telling the truth," Barrett said.

He then challenged the premier to face him on television and try and make the same claim.

Cuba Hijacks Coffee Swindle Suspects

MIAMI (UPI) — A Federal Bureau of Investigation agent says two men involved in a scheme to swindle the Cuban government out of $8.7 million were apprehended by a Cuban officer in Jamaica last week and forced at gunpoint to fly their private jet to Havana.

Agent Everett Whatley said Tuesday the two unnamed men were part of a plot to sell the Cubans 3,000 tons of coffee, which they never planned to deliver.

He said they had also planned to sink an empty ship, claim the coffee was aboard and collect insurance. That part of the plan was never carried out, however.

The $8.7 million was supplied through a letter of credit at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Toronto, agents said. Whatley said about half of it has been recovered but the remainder is on deposit in banks in countries other than the United States or Canada.

"The Cubans do have two men in the case," Whatley said.

He said the Cuban agent boarded the Lear jet and forced the pilot to fly to Havana. When they arrived the pilot was reportedly told to consider himself lucky to avoid detainment and allowed to leave if he didn't do any talking about the case.

Whatley also disclosed that warrants have been issued for Sheldon Turner and Gil McDonald, both Americans. He said Turner was an informant in the case and Turner was wanted for possible extradition to Canada on fraud charges there.

Parents Appeal

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — The parents of three-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green say they will appeal a judge's decision prohibiting them from using the controversial drug Laetrile to treat their son's cancer.

The appeal could be filed with the Massachusetts Appeals Court as early as today, George Donovan, a lawyer representing Gerald and Diane Green of Scituate, said Tuesday.

"They feel that it (the court order) is not going to help Chad," Donovan said, adding the Greens are prepared to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. "The metabolic treatment isn't a cure, but it's helping."

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

The Lockley family wish to thank all those whose beautiful expressions of sympathy helped sustain us through our recent bereavement. Thanks also to the Rev. Miss L. Butler and McCall Bros. for providing the air of quiet dignity wherein we said our last good-byes, and thanks also to the nursing staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital, they could not have done more. In gratitude — Ed, Lois and Ken Lockley.

309 IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON — "In loving memory of our dear Mother, Emma Louisa Anderson, who went Home on January 24, 1978. God sought to give the sweetest thing
In His almightly power
To earth; and deeply pondering
What it should be, one hour
In fondest joy and love of heart
Outweighing every other,
He moved the gates of heaven apart
And gave to earth — My Mother.
Ever remembered by her daughter and son-in-law, Jim and Emma Ashcroft."

ANDERSON — In loving memory of our Grandma, Emma Anderson, who passed away January 24, 1978.
Those we love go out of sight
But never out of mind
hey are cherished in the heart of those they leave behind
Remembered by Lawrie and Doreen Elliott and her Great grandchildren.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUTE, SANDS

Frigid Fans For Hot Music

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Hundreds of young and middle-aged Russians lined up for hours in freezing temperatures outside a central Moscow music shop today when records by two Western music groups went on sale.

Police were called in to control the crowds, which began to gather in the early hours in a frost of —20C long before the shop on the capital's Kalinin Prospect opened.

The records, both Soviet-made under licence, were of the Munich-based group Boney M, which performed in Moscow in December, and the Swedish group Abba.

A saleswoman at the shop said 700 copies of the Boney M record — which does not include the group's popular Rasputin number about the man who had a close relationship with the Russian royal family — had been delivered.

All were sold by the end of the morning but many fans stayed outside the shop hoping that more would arrive. Russians said there were also long lines at other shops where the record, costing 2.15 rubles ($3.20 U.S.) went on sale.

Boney M had concerts in the Soviet Union in December, when tickets were selling for up to 100 rubles ($150) on the black market.

There have been rumors among Russians that Abba — whom Soviet fans have seen on a Saturday night television show — is to visit Moscow but Swedish sources said there were no firm plans.

Nicaragua Border Clash

MANAGUA (AP) — Nicaragua's National Guard reported a large border clash on the Costa Rican frontier Tuesday between its troops and guerrilla forces.

A National Guard spokesman said the fighting raged for more than two hours before the guerrillas retreated into Costa Rica.

Meanwhile, Costa Rican authorities claimed Nicaraguan planes attacked peasants in and near Santa Cecilia, 6.4 kilometres inside Costa Rica. There were no reports of injuries or deaths.

Costa Rican officias said members of an Organization of American States team flew in to interview the peasants.

Early Flowers Springing Up

GARDENING
hilda beastall

Newcomers who buy homes with a garden obviously well started have the excitment of a first spring just opening for them now.

Who knows what treasures the bulbous plants will produce from the winter soil? It is well to be aware of this possibility, otherwise damage may occur from exuberant digging in apparent bare spots during the next week or so.

If original owners cannot be contacted, neighbors are sometimes helpful in pointing out garden areas where certain of the showier spring bulbs have been growing. Allowing for the previous owners having lifted at least some of the bulbs to take to a new garden, an early watch can be kept for emergence of daffodils (including all the narcissi), tulips and hyacinths. Most of these, if present, will show above ground around the end of January.

It is the smaller bulbs and corms that escape the notice at a distance unless they are planted by the hundreds. Yet a small patch of exquisite yellow Winter-aconites (Eranthis hyenalis) is worth looking at every day from the time of first buds in December.

These winter blooming corms grow only an inch or so high, but spread their lobed green leaves showily enough. Flower buds form, and are first seen green-covered with a calyx which opens out into a ruff which protects the expanded flowers from soil splashing.

If Snowdrops (Galanthus, several species) are present they will be already flowering. Always of interest are the different species and forms which creep into an older garden. Some are brought as seed by birds from gardens elsewhere; others are acquired by exchange or purchase while in flower.

Which brings me to another point. Many of these plants with small bulbous or cormous roots really like to be lifted from the ground while in bloom, or at least before they finish blooming.

Don't hesitate to do this now if you would like to spread the plants into another garden spot where you will enjoy having them. Just lift the group with soil and roots attached, and transfer. They spread naturally by increase of bulbs and by seed scattered around.

Both Aconites and Snowdrops like the rays of winter sunshine but for summer, leafy twiggy shade is acceptable since they are then dormant. After tree or shrub leaf-fall, sun will again reach them.

Winter crocuses are now flowering in mostly frost-free gardens. In others just the narrow leaves of February species can be seen if you know what to look for. The leaves are scarcely more than a millimetre wide, dark green, with the distinguished mark of light green down the center of each.

These too may be moved in blocks of soil. They must have open sun, both for flowering well and for summer dormancy when corms and flowers are developing from food gathered before the leaves faded and dried.

Wide, dark-green leaves coming through the soil now in tight whorls may look a little like tulip leaves but are more likely to belong to the lovely fall blooming Colchicum antunmale or C. byzantium.

These leaves are essential to the development of the large fleshy bulb and the subsequent August-September blooming. No leaves are present in the fall. Do not disturb them now. Wait until they become yellowed and limp before cutting them off at ground level.

If wanted elsewhere for next fall blooming, the bulbs can be lifted while dormant and dry in July and replanted immediately. Flowers resemble enormous pinkish mauve crocuses.

Other surprises will emerge in a garden cultivated by a previous owner, but these early ones need early recognition to prevent uprooting later when their leaves die down. It pays to watch for surprise plants in your first year with a new garden.

Bombs Hurled

ST. GEORGES, Grenada (AP) — Molotov cocktails were hurled into the homes of two managers of Barclays Bank during the weekend, badly damaging one house. Nobody was hurt. Police said they believed the attacks were related to unsuccessful talks between the British bank and the year-old bank workers' union.

Recount at Elk Point

EDMONTON (CP) — District Court Judge A. W. Crossley has ordered a recount of last year's mayoral election results in Elk Point, a community about 170 kilometres east of Edmonton.

Mike Habiak, mayor for 26 years, lost the Oct. 20 election to Allan Buck by two votes and applied for a recount. He said seven of the 10 ballots disqualified were marked by a cross rather than an X.

Cultural Shock Follows China's Cultural Revolution

By JOHN FRASER
The Globe and Mail
Special to The Times

PEKING — Western culture has started returning to China in a very big way during the past few weeks. Mostly-banned for more than a decade, Western films, drama, ballet, literature, television programs, opera and even a bit of hard rock have been surfacing for some time but are now getting a concentrated push.

Productions in Chinese of Shakespeare's Othello and Brecht's Galileo will be mounted in Peking and Shanghai shortly, while both cities presented gigantic rallies recently to celebrate, among many other things, Walt Whitman and Puccini.

The banning of Western culture for the broad masses of the Chinese people during the Cultural Revolutions was one of the monumental hypocrisies of the century. The architect of the plan was Chairman Mao Tse-tung's wife, Jiang Quing (Chiang Ching). A former actress who once played Nora in Ibsen's The Doll House during her Shanghai days, Madame Jiang subjected the Chinese to her mind-numbing conception of revolutionary art while she herself held regular private screenings of her favorite Greta Garbo films.

The frightful legacy of Jiang Quing seemed far away last weekend when 20,000 people jammed into Peking's Workers Gymnasium for an evening of Western poetry and song.

Perhaps the most emotional moment came when Xie Bingxin (Hsieh Ping-hsin), made her dramatic appearance. One of China's most beloved novelists, Madame Xie is nearly 80 now and was one of those stalwarts who refused to mend her "counter-revolutionary" ways during the Cultural Revolution.

She is a tiny speck of a person and that night was dressed in her black peasant pants and jacket as she shuffled proudly toward the centre of the vast amphitheatre. A traditionally chatty Chinese audience fell into a profound silence as she opened a book of poetry by Tagore and began reading a love poem in English. Most people there couldn't have understood what she was saying, but how they loved her.

The poetry raadings were followed by operatic selections and song cycles (including a somewhat lurid rendition of Gordon Lightfoot's In the Early Morning Rain adorned with Verdi-like embellishments).

Other evenings like this are being planned for principal cities throughout China. Orchestras continued to blow off the dust on forgotten scores of Western music and the director of China's most important theatrical troupe recently announced that Chinese actors had better start brushing up on the Stanislavski method.

Passion for Western culture in China is far from a new thing. The May Fourth Cultural Movement in the early part of this century used Western drama and literature to shake the foundations of traditional Chinese society and many older revolutionaries can get quite misty-eyed when they recall the first production of Ibsen or Shaw they saw during the nineteen twenties.

There is also some evidence that the authorities are pushing Western culture as a goad to Chinese artists who are still reluctant to take risks in their creative efforts — that is if they are prepared to get involved in the arts at all anymore. Because they have such a potential power to mold opinion and influence ideas, artists have learned in China to be wary of the latest political line.

It is precisely for this reason that there has been nothing significantly important to emerge from Chinese creative artists since the end of Jiang Quing's reign of cultural terror more than two years ago.

The government is slowly accepting the fact that you can't just just summon up creativity and order people to produce great works of art. Trust has to be established first and then an atmosphere of ferment and experimentation.

Crackdown Seen On Peking Posters

PEKING (FP) — China's most active free speech group, the Human Rights Alliance, Tuesday warned Peking citizens that both city and central government authorities may be considering a crackdown on outspoken wall poster writers and organizations like itself.

The warning came in the form of a 10-page dazibao, or big character poster, put up on Xidan (Hsi Tan) democracy wall. In it, the alliance alleges that municipal authorities, including the new mayor Lin Hujia, have taken a critical and antagonistic stance against the proliferation of strongly worded dazibao throughout the city.

Also, Mayor Lin is accused of having referred to unofficial newspapers and groups like the alliance as being "underground." The group denies the charge, pointing out that the newspapers in question have all been posted at Xidan and the Human Rights Alliance itself signs its own posters and its members have appeared in public.

To buttress the validity of its warning, the alliance also posted the text of a recent speech made by a civic official believed to be Deputy Mayor Wang Xiaoyi. The speech attacks "underground" organizations for establishing contacts with foreigners, particularly embassy staff. The speech maintains that certain Chinese approached diplomats and asked for paper supplies.

The speech, as reported by the alliance, continues: "The (civic) committee deems that this is a problem and that the posters are disfiguring our city ... the municipal authorities have decided to hold discussions with the masses and ask them if it is necessary to continue to stick up these posters everywhere when many of them deal with internal matters (a reference to Communist party affairs)?"

Snow, Wind, Rain Keep U.S. Reeling

CHICAGO (AP) — Storm-weary residents of more than a dozen states were whalloped again as snow, high winds and freezing rain caused power failures, school closings and the deaths of stranded livestock. Tornadoes wrecked homes in Louisiana and Florida.

A half dozen tornadoes were reported today in the Gulf of Mexico town of Brandenton, Fla., where roofs and porches were ripped from about 50 trailer homes.

Mayor Elmore Trosclair, who made the damage estimate, said at least 50 buildings in the town of 3,900 were damaged or destroyed, power was cut for several hours and 27 persons were injured, none seriously.

Gov. Edwin Edwards planned to declare the town a disaster area today and National Guards were called in to clear debris.

Georgia forecasters issued a travellers advisory for the northeast part of the state early today, as sleet, freezing rain and snow glazed streets and highways.

Illinois residents were denied a respite from 10 days of severe winter weather when a new storm brought up to eight centimetres of snow.

In Chicago, where public transportation was just beginning to return to normal after a blizzard dropped 50 centimetres of snow a week and a half ago, snow fell early today. Forecasters said 15 centimetres might accumulate.

Oklahoma, Nebraska, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Wisconsin and Michigan all were hit by storms carrying snow and high winds as a cold front pushed eastward toward the Great Lakes region early today.

Up to 10 centimetres of new snow was reported in southern Kansas and Missouri. St. Louis police said the snow created the worst traffic snarl of the winter and caused hundreds of traffic accidents.

Viets Battle For Refinery

BANGKOK (AP) — Vietnamese troops and units of the Cambodian army of ousted Premier Pol Pot were reported battling today for an oil refinery and a radar station near the port of Kompong Som. Small-scale fighting was also reported near the Phnom Penh airport.

Thai military sources said the Vietnamese were holding the refinery and radar station near Cambodia's only deep-water port, but were being forced to resupply their troops by air since Highway 4 linking the seaport area to Phnom Penh was unsafe for traffic.

No details were available on the fighting near the capital's Pochentong Airport, or on other skirmishes reported in widespread areas of Cambodia.

Besides the attacks, the Vietnamese are beginning to face serious logistics problems, Western and Thai sources note.

A Thai report says Vietnamese combat engineers, protected by infantry, have been moving up some of the major highways leading from Phnom Penh to the northwest, to repair roadbeds and bridges. These had been blown up or mined by retreating Pol Pot troops.

Analysts, admitting difficulty in judging the level of the recent fighting, say the Pol Pot troops are using guerrilla tactics and employing small units that are difficult to stop.

Carter Ignores Critics On Car Fuel Standards

WASHINGTON (WP) - The Carter administration, over strong protests from the auto industry, Tuesday refused to back down from the government's tough 1985 standards for fuel economy, warning that the added costs to the consumer were outweighed by the need to conserve energy.

The decision appeared to end a major battle in the continuing war between the government and the industry over auto fuel efficiency standards.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, in submitting the administration's fuel efficiency report to Congress, urged the auto industry to "join us, not fight us."

Adams conceded that the 27.5 miles-per-gallon standard for 1985 would be costly, but he said "those costs represent an investment in the U.S. economy. The cost of not meeting the standards means dollars being spent for foreign fuel — and money in OPEC's pocket." OPEC is the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The administration specifically rejected a proposal made last week by General Motors president E.M. Estes to phase in the new standard between now and 1988. Estes claimed this would save the consumer an average of $240 of the $590 per car he estimated the standard now will cost.

But Joan Claybrook, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said Tuesday that the GM plan would cost the nation an estimated 7 billion gallons of fuel during the proposed stretch-out period.

She also said the fuel economy gained by the standards will save the average purchaser of a 1985 car $500 in operating expenses over the life of the car."

The report predicted that implementation of the standards would permit a reduction in projected oil imports by 15 per cent in 1985 and 20 per cent in 1990.

Calling automotive fuel economy the nation's single most important energy-saving program, Adams said "through it, we can save 220 billion gallons of petroleum by 1990, save motorists $60 billion in unnecessary fuel costs in 1978 dollars and reduce the trade deficit by $7 billion in 1985 and by nearly $12 billion by 1990."

Ford Motor Co. said it had "mixed feelings" about the Transportation Department report, and called on the agency "to scale back its overambitious goals and timetables."

GREAT-GRANNY, 71, GUILTY

She was acquitted of a second charge, of conspiring to kill the judge who dissolved her marriage in 1975 and cut off temporary alimony of $52,000 a year.

The accused, Maria Ramsay, who wed Joseph Ramsay after a whirlwind courtship in Rome in 1959, sobbed to the court: "I've been buried, can't you see that?"

She begged the judge during her trial to "please help me to bring back my husband."

A jury of eight men and four women deliberated for about four hours before returning its verdict. She is to be sentenced March 6.

The prosecution contended that Mrs Ramsay, who lives at the fashionable Plaza Hotel in New York, had sought to have the judge killed as an act of vengeance.

Prosecution lawyers played a number of tape recordings which were alleged to contain conversations between Mrs. Ramsay and an undercover policeman who was to have helped kidnap her husband and murder the judge for $20,000. The prosecution alleged Mrs. Ramsay had made a $400 initial payment to the undercover officer.

During the trial, Mrs. Ramsay testified she was a victim of people close to her former husband who were afraid she might have a legal claim against his property.

Inflation Carter's Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is sounding a keynote of restraint for the U.S. Congress whose leaders agree with his austerity, but are already arguing about proper targets for the budget cutters.

"The president charged business and labor and the Congress to work together to beat inflation," said Speaker Thomas O'Neill of the House of Representatives. "I will do whatever I can, as speaker, to do what the president wants."

Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan Cranston was not as effusive, "I differ with the president on the proposal to increase defence spending by huge sums when we are the strongest nation on earth," the California Democrat said.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright (Dem. Tex.) called Carter's commitment to fight inflation commendable and said: "He will have the active support of Congress." But Wright predicted "there may be some disagreements as to where the cuts should come."

Carter's State of the Union message, delivered to a joint session of Congress Tuesday night, dwelt heavily on inflation and the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, which the Senate must ratify by a two-thirds majority.

With negotiations on the treaty in their final stages, Carter made a strong appeal for support of the agreement once it is sent to the Senate, probably early this year.

"New Foundation" emerged as the catchphrase of the Carter address.

"We are building a new foundation for a peaceful and prosperous world," he said in the opening lines. "We build the foundation for a strong economy.

"We build the foundation for a government that works.

"We must continue to build a new and firm foundation for a stable world community."

And the president closed his address by saying: "Tonight, I ask you to join me in building that new foundation — a better foundation — for our country and our world."

Tehran Airport Re-Opened

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The Iranian army today abruptly announced the re-opening of Tehran airport only hours after tank-led troops closed the runways in an attempt to stop the triumphant return of anti-government leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"The situation is totally confused," one diplomat said. "We have been told by the military the airport is open. That is all we know. We don't know if it will remain open Friday when Khomeini is scheduled to return and if the government has had a change of heart."

Tank and infantry units of the elite Imperial Guards, known for fierce loyalty to the shah, remained stationed at the airport even after its reopening was announced. Although the airport closure by the army was officially announced on the national radio, the reopening was not.

Striking Iran Air workers earlier had disabled two Boeing 747 jumbo jets to be flown to Paris to bring the Shiite Moslem patriarch home after 14 years in exile.

Employees of the national airline said the starter switches and fuel-pressure transmitters were removed from the two planes that were to have been sent to Paris.

In Paris, a spokesman for the 78-year-old religious leader said he will leave Paris Thursday night as scheduled, using a chartered Air France plane, but would turn back if the airport was still closed Friday. However, when asked whether he might try to land at another airport in Iran, the spokesman replied: "Possibly, yes."

Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar, whose government Khomeini has spurned as illegal because the shah appointed it, told parliament that he has sent a "trusted representative" to Paris to negotiate with Khomeini.

He said the envoy carried a letter from him indicating his willingness "to do anything within the framework of the constitution, including any desired changes in the constitution."

"But as I have said before, I will not leave the fortress of the constitution, and I would like to reiterate it today," said Bakhtiar, himself a longtime opponent of the shah.

Khomeini's aides in Paris said previously he will not negotiate with representatives of Bakhtiar because he does not recognize the legality of his government.

The air force, controlling airport operations because of a strike wave paralysing the country, will prevent any takeoff or landing of Iran Air planes, an air force

NEW JEWEL AT UVIC

The new jewel on the University of Victoria campus costs $8 million and some Victorians have detected flaws.

But the 1,275-seat University Centre concert hall is drawing visitors from afar, some with high hopes of borrowing innovative features to include in similar halls planned in their own cities.

350 Jobs In New Ferry Project

Burrard Yarrows Corporation was today awarded the $57.8 million contract for building two new Cowichan-class ferries for the Departure Bay—Horseshoe Bay route.

Don Challinor, general manager of the Victoria division, said the contract could mean the creation of up to 350 jobs here.

The new vessels will be similar to but improved versions of the ferries Queen of Cowichan and Queen of Coquitlam already on the route.

Challinor said they will be 357 feet long, accommodating 360 cars and 1,500 passengers.

Modifications on the original Cowichan-class design include an additional 18 inches in width, and improved seating and galley arrangements.

The Vancouver shipyard will be working about two months ahead of its Victoria counterpart, he said.

The ferry to be built in Vancouver will be delivered in February, 1981, while the Victoria vessel is scheduled for delivery in April that year.

Challinor said the steel required may not be delivered for about three months, so actual construction will not start until then.

He estimated the job will involve an average of about 350 men working for 18 months.

It's difficult to estimate how many of those will be new jobs, he said, but if the yard continues at its present tempo they could all be additional jobs.

Reveal Sources Or Risk Jail, B.C. Editor Told

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The B.C. Ferries Corporation is seeking a court order to have the editor of a small bi-weekly newspaper in Powell River jailed or fined.

Her offense: Failing to disclose the newspaper's sources in a story about a ferry docking collision last September.

Legal sources say the motion by the corporation, to be heard Monday in the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver, marks the first time anyone has tried to have a B.C. journalist declared in contempt of an arbitration board.

Specifically, the application by the ferry authority seeks an order that Wendy Fitzgibbons, editor of the award-winning Powell River News and Powell River Town Crier (circulation 5,500), "be committed to the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) or alternatively fined for contempt of the board of arbitration."

In an interview with the Times Tuesday, New Zealand-born Fitzgibbons would not say whether she intends to maintain silence under the threat of imprisonment.

But she did say: "Confidentiality of names and information is sacred to any decent journalist and I consider myself a decent journalist."

The corporation's action arises out of an arbitration hearing in Victoria last week when Fitzgibbons refused to identify Town Crier sources who said the master of the ferry Queen of the Islands was not on the bridge when it collided last Sept. 20 with a dock at Saltery Bay, 17 miles south of Powell River.

The collision, which caused an estimated $500,000 damage, was initially blamed on malfunctioning equipment.

But after an internal inquiry into the incident some time after the newspaper's reported allegations the corporation fired Captain Gerry Stalling.

The B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers' Union subsequently appealed the firing by filing a grievance under the collective agreement and the two-day arbitration hearing in Victoria last week will resume in Vancouver Tuesday — the day after Fitzgibbons appears in court on the contempt application.

The Monday edition of the Powell River newspaper appears under the Town Crier logo while the Wednesday edition is called the News. Fitzgibbons has been editor of both for the last 2½ years.

In 1977 they captured several awards in a competition for Canadian community newspapers.

Fitzgibbons told the Times her 13-year career in newspapers covers five years in New Zealand and the last eight in Canada. Before joining the Powell River newspaper she was international editor of the Edmonton Journal and prior to that she was with the Winnipeg Tribune and Calgary Albertan.

She said the curious aspect of the whole affair was the initial absence of any official reaction to the Town Crier story.

But then, shortly before Christmas, "the phone started burning up with people asking questions about the allegations," she said.

Fitzgibbons said she refused to disclose the sources quoted in the item, and again declined to do so when she was summonsed to appear before the arbitration board last week.

Vancouver lawyer Irwin Nathanson stated at the

'BLOOD BATH' ON STRIKE ACT?

NELSON (CP) — More than 1,000 union workers listened as Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, threatened a "blood-bath" if the provincial government continues to restrict the right to strike. He did not elaborate.

The rally Tuesday night was the first of nine planned for the province to demonstrate organized labor's objections to Section 11 of the Essential Services Disputes Act. The act, passed in December, restricts strike action in schools, municipalities and regional districts.

Labor leaders in British Columbia are looking to the election process to protect collective bargaining, Kinnaird said.

"There's no power greater than the working people and we can exercise that power at the polls," he said. "That's what we're going to do."

Canada Geese nibble contentedly

Goose Feeders Given The Bird In Penticton

PENTICTON (CP) — Bird lovers will have to keep a low profile in this Okanagan city if council is successful at putting into effect two motions it passed this week in an effort to clean up pollution problems caused by an overpopulation of Canada geese at area lakes.

Council voted to draft a bylaw that would make feeding geese at parks and beaches an offence punishable by a fine and to ask the Canadian Wildlife Service to approve controlled hunting of the geese and other waterfowl.

The goose population, estimated by local naturalists to have increased to over 800 this year from 250 five years ago, has fouled beaches and water at Okanagan and Skaha Lakes to such an extent that health authorities have suggested that at least part of one beach might have to be closed.

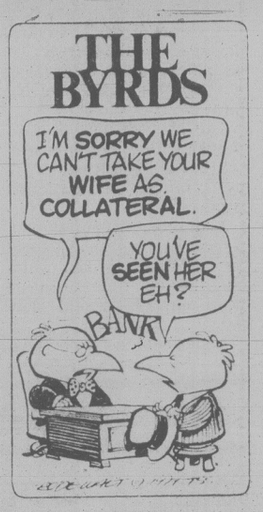
The Greenpeace Foundation, which has locked horns with city council before over the question of chemical treatment of aquatic weeds that infest the lakes, said Tuesday it will oppose the controlled shoot.

Greenpeace president Patrick Moore said protestors "will stand in front of the guns, if we have to, to put a halt to this stupid destruction of wildlife."

Moore said the proposal was "a senseless solution to a non-existent problem."

"If these people are genuinely worried about pollution, they would do something about the human and industrial sewage flowing into the lake and the runoff from fertilizer and domestic animal waste in the Okanagan basin.

"This whole idea sounds more like a thin excuse for someone to get in some hunting than anything to do with health or ecology."



Smiles Strike Weapon

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's civil servants and commuters suffering the misery of a rail strike and falling snow, have one thing in common: they have stopped smiling.

For the civil servants, members of the National Union of Public Employees, it's a deliberate weapon in their complaints about low pay. For the commuters, and millions of other Britons, its unavoidable as strikes affect more and more of their lives.

Rail services in south England were in chaos today and there was no progress toward a settlement of the major disputes involving truck and train drivers.

Low-paid workers who staged a protest strike Monday continued intermittent stoppages which in some districts deprived hospital patients of meals, closed schools and curtailed ambulance services.

The National Union of Public Employees told its members in southwest England to stay on the job but to perform their duties "without a smile or a sparkle."

Britain's biggest civil service union, the Civil and Public Services Association, announced its members had voted two-to-one to stage a one-day strike and follow it up with other forms of industrial action.

For the second straight day hundreds of thousands were unable to get to work. A one-day rail strike Tuesday meant lines had not been de-iced in freezing, snow-bound southern England.

The only move in the three-week-old truckers' dispute was appeal by employers to the drivers. The Road Haulage Association placed advertisements in national newspapers urging drivers "to get Britain back on the road" and accept their latest 15 per cent pay offer.

Prime Minister James Callaghan met nurses' leaders at 10 Downing Street to discuss their pay grievance. The nurses, who complain they have fallen far behind on the pay scale, have pledged never to call an all-out strike.

Skateboards Injure 140,000

Injuries to skateboard users have grown to 30 times the figure for 1973 and one alarmed consumer group has asked the commission to ban skateboards.

"Something must be done immediately, before one more child dies or is permanently disabled," said Ann Brown, chairman of the consumer affairs committee of Americans for Democratic Action, in the group's petition to the commission.

The commission must decide next month if skateboards present an "unreasonable risk of injury" that makes a ban necessary.

It has the legel authority to issue a ban but one surely would be strongly resisted by users of the skateboards. The commission has made no public statements to indicate which way it will vote.

A commission report issued in December, 1977, said, "Skateboard-related injuries have risen dramatically over the past five years." The report documented 28 deaths since 1975 and said the injury figure is being increased by the popularity of the skateboard.

The 140,000 injuries make skateboards second only to bicycles in the commission's ranking of products associated with injuries.

The skateboard injuries occur mainly to children between 10 and 15 years old. While broken bones are the most common injuries that require hospital treatment, the most severe involve brain damage when a child falls to the pavement or is knocked off a skateboard by a car.

Daughter Dead, City Couple Find

A Victoria couple whose daughter vanished on a trip to Egypt in 1976 have learned their daughter is dead.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Carol Harold, of 1004 De Costa, are now attempting to have Egyptian authorities send her remains back to Canada.

The body of their daughter, Carol Anita, 35, was found near a pharoah's tomb in upper Egypt.

Her skeletal remains were found in a labyrinth beyond the pharonic temples of Karnak and Luxor, the newspaper Al Ahram reported Tuesday.

Born in Port Alberni, Miss Harold graduated from Mount View High School and was a social worker and a graduate of Queen's University in Kingston.

An enthusiastis archeology student, she left the Luxor hotel in December, 1976 and went out alone to visit the Valley of Kings on the west bank of the Nile. She never returned.

An Egyptian inquiry into the cause of death said that Miss Harold fell into an abandoned excavation outside the Tomb of King Tutankhamen while exploring a tunnel leading to a cave.

Unable to climb the six-metre high rock face, she wrote a farewell note and waited for death.

In the note, published by Al Ahram, Miss Harold explained how she fell, blamed her death on carelessness and ended, "I regret that I can do nothing to save my own life."
